RCA VICTOR and Book-of-the-Month Club

ANNOUNCE THE FORMATION OF

The RCA Victor Society of Great Music

...its common-sense purpose is to help serious lovers of music build up a fine record library systematically, instead of haphazardly. By doing so, they can save ALMOST ONE THIRD of what they would pay otherwise for the same RCA VICTOR Red Seal Records.

MOST MUSIC-LOVERS, in the back of their minds, certainly intend to build up for themselves a representative record library of the World's Great Music. Unfortunately, almost always they are haphazard in carrying out this aspiration. The new Society is designed to meet this common situation, sensibly, by making collection more systematic than it now is in most cases.

★ Thereafter, continuing members can build their record library at almost a ONE-THIRD SAVING. For every two records purchased (from a group of at least fifty made available annually by the Society) members will receive a third RCA VICTOR Red Seal Record free.

★ A cardinal feature of the plan is GUIDANCE. The Society has a Selection Panel whose sole business it is to determine "must-have" works for members. Members of the panel are:

DEEMS TAYLOR, composer and commentator, Chairman
SAMUEL CHOTZINOFF, General Music Director, NBC
JACQUES BARZUN, author and music critic
JOHN M. CONLY, editor of High Fidelity
AARON COPLAND, composer
ALFRED FRANKENSTEIN, music critic of San Francisco Chronicle
DOUGLAS MOORE, composer and Professor of Music, Columbia University
WILLIAM SCHUMAN, composer and president of Juilliard School of Music
CARLETON SPRAGUE SMITH, chief of Music Division, N. Y. Public Library
G. WALLACE WOODWORTH, Professor of Music, Harvard University

HOW THE SOCIETY OPERATES

EACH month, three or more RCA VICTOR Red Seal Records will be announced to members. One will always be singled out as the record-of-the-month, and unless the Society is otherwise instructed (on a simple form always provided), this record will be sent to the member. If the member does not want the work he may specify an alternate, or instruct the Society to send him nothing. For every record purchased, members will pay no more than the nationally advertised price of RCA VICTOR Red Seal Records at the time (plus a small charge for postage and handling).

AS THE HEART AND CORE OF A LIFETIME RECORD LIBRARY

If I continue after buying six records, for every two records I purchase from the Society I will receive a third RCA VICTOR Red Seal Record, free. THE FAMILY CAR®

What to do when winter chokes up your car

When your car fails to start on cold mornings, it's frequently because the automatic choke is stuck. If so, there's no need for calling the tow truck; you can remedy the problem yourself in a few seconds

By Leslie C. Ruska

The automatic choke, which is the round case about 2½ inches in diameter mounted on the side of your carburetor, is a simple mechanism that comes into operation every time you start your car's engine. Without any thought or decision from you, it decides whether any choking action is necessary to start the engine, and if so, how much.

Yet with all its simplicity, the automatic choke sometimes acts up. This is frequently during a downpour or when the temperature is below zero, since adverse conditions impose maximum demands.

The present day carburetor is a rather complex piece of equipment with the basic function of providing the engine with the proper mixture of air and gasoline under all conditions of engine load and speed. One of these conditions, and the one we are primarily concerned with here, is cold weather, when the engine needs an extra-rich mixture. To see how this mechanism works, consider what happens when you start your car. The choke valve, a flat metal plate operated by the automatic choke, is closed, almost completely shutting off the air supply entering the carburetor. A spring inside the choke housing closes the valve and keeps it closed while the engine is cold. An air supply sufficient to keep the engine operating once it has started is provided by a vacuum piston also located in the choke housing. This piston pulls on the spring and overcomes some of its tension, thereby partially opening the choke valve. This air supply must be admitted immediately after the engine starts, or the excessively rich fuel mixture provided by the full choke will flood the engine. After engine warm-up, the choke valve is completely and automatically opened, offering no further opposition to the entrance of the air.

The most common difficulty with automatic chokes is a sticking choke valve. When you start your car's engine, the first step is to press the accelerator pedal. Since the choke valve linkage is connected to this pedal, your initial action slams the choke valve closed. If there is to be any sticking of the automatic choke parts, this is when it happens; the engine starts, runs for a few seconds, and then stops. Your efforts to restart it fail. Prolonged cranking on your part serves only to aggravate the flooded engine and discharge your battery. [ Turn to page 9

How the automatic choke keeps your engine running properly

Full choke. When you start car, the choke valve is almost completely closed. This is the position in which the valve frequently sticks in cold weather, thus stalling the engine.

Half choke. As soon as the engine starts, a spring partially opens the choke valve to admit air. If no air is admitted, the fuel gets too rich, and the engine often floods.

No choke. After your motor becomes warm, the choke valve is opened completely and automatically. Air then enters unopposed, and mixes freely with the gasoline.

When winter chokes your car

What happened was this: the engine started when you initially cranked it because the choke valve closed, providing the rich fuel mixture necessary for starting. However, after the engine started, the choke valve stuck shut, and the action of the vacuum piston was not strong enough to bring it to a position of partial choke. As long as your engine ran, it was operating on full choke, which resulted in its becoming flooded.

If a sticking automatic choke is your trouble, you will have two definite indications. First, the engine will start, run for a short while, and then stall. All efforts to restart it will fail. Second, a strong gasoline odor will be present, and on raising the car's hood you will see gasoline dripping from the carburetor. Before your engine can be started again, the choke valve must be released. This is done by hand-operating the choke linkage on the side of the carburetor to free the choke valve.

Pulling down on the linkage will release the choke. If there is more than one link on your carburetor, operate the link connected to the center of the air horn. Do not be afraid to operate the linkage; there is nothing in the automatic choke mechanism that can be damaged by this hand action. After you have released the stuck valve, allow the linkage to assume the position it desires. Then press the accelerator pedal all the way to the floor and hold it there while you crank the engine. This action will prevent the carburetor from supplying any more fuel, and will permit the engine to pump out the surplus. Don't pump the accelerator pedal during this cranking, as each pump of the pedal squirts in an additional quantity of gasoline. As soon as the engine starts, hold the accelerator pedal in a half open position, without pumping, until the engine is operating smoothly and the black smoke stops coming out of the tail pipe. This black smoke is the surplus gasoline being expelled.

A word of warning: don't crank the motor for more than 30 seconds at a time. Considerable heat is generated in cranking, and prolonged cranking can result in serious damage to the starter motor. If the engine hasn't been cleared of excess fuel after 30 seconds, turn off the ignition key for a minute or two. This waiting period will also permit the battery to become somewhat revitalized.

If your choke presents a frequent problem, the services of a carburetor expert are in order. Choke sticking occurs because of physical misfitting of parts and because of the accumulation of gasoline gum deposits or rust or corrosion on the choke shafts and linkages. Be sure extreme pressure is not applied when the air cleaner is mounted on the carburetor. Carburetor bodies are made of a soft alloy which is subject to distortion. Distortion in the area of the choke valve will, of course, result in chronic flooding.

Having your car winterized by a competent tune-up specialist, who will include complete automatic choke service in his operation, is the surest way to avoid starting difficulties.

If the humidity is high and the temperature is between freezing and about 45 degrees above zero, another difficulty might plague you: your engine will start normally, but will have a tendency to stall at every traffic light for the first 10 or 15 minutes of car operation. Don't blame the choke; a condition known as carburetor icing is occurring. The atomizing and evaporation of gasoline, which is a normal process in the carburetor, has a tendency to drop the temperature in the carburetor. This causes the moisture in the air to freeze on contacting the throttle plate, shutting off the air and fuel supply to the engine. There is nothing you can do about relieving this condition once it occurs. It will pass as soon as the engine comes up to normal operating temperature. Any attempt to adjust the choke or the carburetor at this time will lead only to more serious complications as the engine temperature changes.

Don't confuse this condition with frozen gas lines, where the collection of water in the lines has frozen and has blocked off the gasoline supply. Carburetor icing will not prevent you from starting your engine again, but if a slight pressure isn't constantly applied to the accelerator pedal the engine will stall again and again. The only recourse is to keep the engine operating slightly faster than idle speed. This will keep the throttle valve cracked open enough to allow a sufficient supply of air and fuel to enter the engine. When the engine warms up to normal operating temperature, the carburetor will stop acting as a refrigerator unit.

GARDEN

In all areas

Dusts and sprays: Check your supplies and be sure you have enough to carry you through the first part of the season. Buy what you need now—avoid the rush and possible disappointment.

Scale: This is an excellent time for dormant spraying to control scale. Apply it when temperature is above 45 degrees. Ask your nurseryman, or at your garden center, for a product designed specifically for scale control.

Central and East

Lawns: Make very sure you put your order in for plant food if you haven't done so already. . . . Check on your plant-food spreader, too, to see that it's in good working order. Give it any necessary repairs.

Vegetables: Mail in your final orders for seeds. . . . Start now to round up stakes and supports—don't wait until the peak of the season.

Shrubs and trees: Prune back shrubs that are beginning to sprawl out of bounds. Your work is easier this month while they're still without foliage.

Annuals, perennials, and bulbs: Keep a sharp eye out for first signs of spring-flowering bulbs poking through the soil. Make sure they're not trampled on before they have a chance to develop.

California

Lawns: Check your garden supplies to be sure you've got 2,4-D on hand for the upcoming battle with lawn weeds. . . . Feed established lawns.

Fruits: Dormant spraying for fruit trees is a must this month if you haven't begun this chore yet. Insect eggs are about to hatch—some insects are starting to multiply.

Vegetables: Begin now to sow seeds of the hardier vegetables. These include radishes, beets, cabbage, lettuce, and onions. Use the quick-growing radishes to mark rows of the slower growing vegetables.

Shrubs and trees: Bare-root plantings should go in this month before the weather warms up. This is true of both trees and shrubs.

Annuals, perennials, and bulbs: Continue to plant summer bulbs this month. Use them where annuals and perennials will leave gaps in beds and borders.

Take foot-long cuttings from your favorite shrub for rooting indoors. Tie cuttings in a bundle; simply drop the bundle in a pail of water.

Check garden furniture to be sure it's ready to go outside. Make necessary repairs; paint it for new brightness—protection from weather.

REMINDERS

Pacific Northwest

Lawns: Keep foot traffic off the lawn when it's wet. Turf is easily compacted when rains have made it soggy.

Vegetables: Late this month, plant peas. They thrive in cool weather, will do even better if you side dress with plant food when blossoms have set.

Shrubs and trees: Prune shade trees during a mild spell. Cut back summer-flowering shrubs, too. . . . As soon as frost is out of the ground, set out new trees and shrubs where needed. . . . Give roses a dormant spray early this month. Cut down on the strength of the solution if new shoots have already appeared.

South and Southeast

Lawns: Feed now in the Lower and Middle South, wait until next month for the same chore in the Upper South. . . . Plant food and water induce luxuriant growth on your lawn. Be sure the mower is in top working order.

Fruits: Dormant plantings of fruit trees must go in now while the last stages of winter linger in the Upper South.

Vegetables: In the Upper South, hold off until the soil is workable, but start planning your vegetable garden now. The less hardy vegetables may go in now in the Lower South. This list includes corn, beans, potatoes, and turnip.

Shrubs and trees: Restrict shrub pruning to summer-flowering varieties now. . . . Feed all shrubs, however. . . . As camellias come into bloom, give them acid-soil food mixture.

Annuals, perennials, and bulbs: Plant bulbs in the Lower South only this month. Wait until March for bulb planting in upper southern areas.

Texas-Southwest

Lawns: This is feeding time. Fill the plant-food spreader where food won't spill out and damage grass; be careful not to apply double dosage where you turn the spreader around.

Shrubs and trees: Begin your dusting and spraying program on roses and azaleas. Blight damage is easier to avoid than to cure. . . . Take steps to keep redspiders from establishing a foothold, too. Best defense against them is a strong jet of water from hose. If they do settle on your shrubs, spray with malathion or other miticide immediately.

Don't forget birds still need your help for food. Until warm weather increases their natural food supply keep feeder station well stocked.

Now that days are getting longer, give your house plants their regular spring feeding. Apply food at rate recommended on the package.

"If you'd tie them double, we wouldn't have this all the time"

Tired of doing things they should be doing for themselves? Here's help on getting them to help themselves as well as you

By C. Howard Smith

"There's nothing I wouldn't do for my children. Nothing." Sound familiar? It should. You've probably said the same thing yourself more times than you can remember. And no doubt it expresses exactly the way you feel about your little Johnny or Mary. So you spend the greater part of your waking hours mending, cooking, washing, and ironing for them to make their lives comfortable. You never count the cost in terms of time, energy, and money.

But at the end of a particularly trying day, do you ever feel like saying to yourself, "I wish there were some things that my children could do for themselves"?

That's the way the Boltons sometimes feel about their 12-year-old Betty. Getting her ready for school, for instance, keeps Mrs. Bolton in a whirl of activity for 45 minutes every morning.

"Please, Mama," Betty calls from upstairs, just as Mrs. Bolton is ready to pour the breakfast coffee, "help me find my other shoe. And I don't know what happened to my barrette. And will you bring me my pencils and black leather notebook?"

Mrs. Bolton hardly finishes one set of assignments before Betty is ready with another. It is not surprising that she says to her husband, "What would Betty [ Turn to page 14

Some questions may not apply at your child's age, but a score of 10 or better indicates that your child is excellent in self-reliance; 8, good; 6, average. A score of less than 6 shows that you still have a lot to teach him about taking care of himself.

remember to do without us?" If she asked, "What could Betty do without us?" the answer should probably be, "Nothing."

The Boltons' real problem is not that they have an absent-minded daughter. The truth is she remembers very well. Experience has taught her that there isn't anything her parents won't do for her. So she seldom has a chance to test her ability for helping herself.

Healthy children respond quickly to appeals to think and act independently. They like to believe that they can do something worthy of your approval. And a little patient effort will enable you to take advantage of this natural characteristic.

Here are three things you can do: 1. Urge your child in his early years to serve himself. 2. As he gets older, give him a chance to do things for you. 3. When he enters his early teens, persuade him to take an interest in the running of your household affairs.

Getting your child to help himself is a matter of showing affection without waiting on him hand and foot. Loving a child does not mean that you should think of him as unable to shift for himself.

It is true that tiny fingers and young minds cannot cope immediately with everything that grownups have to do. But you must remember that physical and mental skills increase with each passing day.

Watch for Johnny's first attempt to button his own clothes. Let him try it. And praise him for it. That will give him confidence to repeat his efforts and try his strength in other fields. He may soon be able to break his own potato or climb unassisted into his own chair. [ Turn to page 16

How to quit waiting on kids

Don't be impatient when he fails. Children learn a lot from their mistakes.

As soon as he learns to dress himself, your child is ready to help you around the house. Let him hand you a newspaper, or pick up his toys, or bring you your sewing basket, or find Daddy's slippers. Later on, he can assist in dusting small and uncomplicated pieces of furniture. He can answer the phone and take messages. He can carry small packages for you from the store. Of course, he won't be able to do these tasks perfectly, but the practice he gets from helping you will encourage him in developing habits of self-reliance.

Always remember to thank Johnny for helping you. This will make him feel that he has done something to merit your affection. Your gratitude will be a marvelous incentive to him. Naturally, the things you ask shouldn't be beyond his strength and years. And you should avoid assigning him the same tasks each day. Drudgery and routine wear down a child's willingness to help.

As Johnny and Mary approach high-school age, give them a share in family responsibilities. For example, let Mary plan her own wardrobe in terms of the money available. Then let her sit in on discussions of the family budget. Show her the necessity of dividing and sharing funds. Ask her to limit her choices if there is not enough money for all the things she wants. This will help her realize how and why she must fit her needs to those of other family members.

Be sure, of course, to explain to your children the ABC's of family planning and sharing. To help intelligently, they'll need to know what it's all about. Teach them the meaning of income, expenses, cash on hand, and savings. The results will justify your confidence in them. As they get a better understanding of family problems, they become increasingly aware of their own responsibilities. Opportunities to help others will then be apparent to them. And by helping others, children learn to help themselves.

Remember that although there isn't anything you would not do for your children, they're better off paddling their own canoes. They need to face real-life situations where they must use their own judgment. When they are away from home, they will put to good use the problem-solving techniques they learned as children. They will thank you for training them to feel that their own efforts really counted for something. And this feeling of self-security will help your children to face the ups and downs of everyday living.

Danger Signal

Streptococcal infections, including scarlet fever, are on the rise—in contrast to all other infectious diseases of children. Scarlet fever threatens kidneys and, in common with all "strep" infections, may be a forerunner of rheumatic fever, crippler of youngsters' hearts.

Since inflamed, painful throats are the usual first sign of strep, careful parents consider all sore throats serious and worthy of medical attention. With modern antibiotics, doctors can shorten these illnesses, prevent complications.

Better HOME INSURANCE through package policies

Until recently, it took a handful of separate policies to insure your home adequately. But now you can do it all at once. This article shows you how to get cheaper and more complete coverage in one, all-inclusive package

By Ronald M. Deutsch

Because of the abundance of new home-insurance policies, a wise buyer can now get more protection than ever before—and possibly for less money.

This is due largely to the appearance of the package policy. By combining various types of home protection, insurance companies have been able to slash premiums from 10 to 30 percent, and throw in added coverages at the same time.

To understand how to get the best package buy, you must first consider the basic types of home insurance coverage.

The primary function of any kind of insurance is to protect you against a financial catastrophe, against a loss too big for you to handle. This being the case, you naturally start your home protection program with fire insurance.

At one time, most Americans bought "depreciated value" fire insurance, which was designed to pay the cost of any fire-destroyed property less depreciation. If a roof burned, for instance, the homeowner would get the current value of the roof, which was usually not enough to buy a new one. Now, most companies offer "replacement cost" insurance. With this, you are paid enough to buy a new roof if yours burns.

The only requirement for replacement cost insurance, which costs slightly more than depreciated value insurance, is that you buy protection for no less than 80 percent of your home's total value. Since the policy calls for 80 percent coverage at the time of loss, families planning additions or improvements should buy at least 90 percent coverage for their present home.

Of course, fire isn't the only thing you need guard against. You should add to your fire policy an "extended coverages" endorsement, which covers the cost of damage from windstorm, hail, explosion, riot, civil commotion, aircraft, vehicles, and smoke. The price of these policies, incidentally, is standard from one insurance company to another, and a "special" price probably means a "special," watered-down coverage.

Unfortunately, many people stop their home insurance with fire and extended coverages, not realizing that they are insufficiently insured. "One reason for this," says an expert, "is that lenders require only enough insurance to protect their investment, which never exceeds the value of the house itself. Homeowners frequently reason that what satisfies the lender is good enough to satisfy them. They don't see that other types of insurance are vital."

Families content to insure only as much as the lender demands fail to consider their own possessions. And statistics show that losses of contents are common, while total house losses are rare.

Every family should make an inventory of its possessions—clothes, furniture, appliances, rugs, draperies, and all other items—and should then enlarge their fire and extended coverages policy to include this added value.

You'll undoubtedly want to add theft insurance, too. Most experts recommend that the average family take only a limited amount of theft insurance, since only portable items are easily stolen. You can get both on-premises and off-premises protection for your property. Since most of your property normally stays inside the house, on-premises coverage is obviously more important.

One new policy is the "broad form" theft coverage. To ordinary theft provisions, this policy adds protection against a loss you can't account for, but which isn't necessarily a theft. It also covers unattended property stolen from an automobile. A broad form policy is not inexpensive, but for some people, such as salesmen, it has real advantages.

The last basic insurance need for all homeowners is liability insurance. Like its counterpart in automobile insurance, home liability insurance [ Turn to page 20

Better home insurance

protects against claims of personal injury that are caused by your property—icy sidewalks, for example. Such claims are often for staggering sums, and experts agree that no home should have less than $25,000 liability protection. Liability insurance is surprisingly cheap. A $10,000 policy costs only about $10 a year, $25,000 coverage only $2 more. For $15 you can get the protection of a $100,000 policy.

These policies, then—fire and extended coverages protection for home and contents, theft, and liability—make up a good basic plan. The typical premium for this coverage, bought three years at a time to save more money, is $168.70 for an average family owning a $16,000 frame house. It breaks down like this:

| Type of Insurance | Amount of Insurance | Premium (for 3 years) |
|---|---|---|
| Fire (for dwelling) | $14,400 (90 percent) | $34.80 |
| Extended coverages (dwelling) | $14,400 | $14.40 |
| Fire and extended coverages (for contents) | $ 3,000 | $19.50 |
| Theft (broad form) | | $70.00 |
| On-premises | $ 1,500 | |
| Off-premises | $ 1,000 | |
| Liability | $25,000 | $30.00 |
| | 3-year total | $168.70 |

This program, which costs only a little more than one percent of the house's value every three years, is a bargain. But there are now ways of getting even more coverage for even less money—the package policies mentioned before.

One kind of package is the homeowner policy. This is a ready-made policy that comes in fixed amounts rather than being fitted to the specific valuation of each house. A family needing $14,400 in fire insurance, for instance, would have to take $15,000—not $14,400. For each price level, there are three homeowner policies, ranging from "A," the cheapest, to "C," the most expensive. This is what a homeowner's "A" policy offers the average family, compared to similar features of non-package insurance policies:

1. $15,000 insurance against fire and extended coverage perils.
2. $6,000 contents insurance. (Twice that offered by average non-package coverage.)
3. $10,000 liability. (An extra $5 will make this $25,000.)
4. $6,000 on-premises theft. (Non-package coverage is $1,500.)
5. $1,000 off-premises theft—except theft from an unattended car.
6. $1,500 additional living expense. (An extra, this pays your living expenses if your home should become unhabitable for a time.)
7. Insurance against glass breakage, subject to a deductible of $50.
8. $1,500 coverage for appurtenant structures—normally, your garage.

The total cost for this "A" policy is $140 for three years, a savings of almost $30 over non-package insurance.

Now let's look at the homeowner's "B" policy. This costs $170 for three years, or $10 a year more than the "A" policy. It adds to the full benefits of the "A" policy, the following:

1. Full glass-breakage coverage. ("A" policy has a $50 deductible.)
2. $3,000 additional living expense. ("A" offers $1,500.)
3. Protection against damage from faulty plumbing and heating systems or bursting water pipes, vandalism and malicious mischief, ice, snow, freezing, and collapse, and protection against damage from vehicles driven by members of the family.

The "B" policy also may be endorsed to provide "all physical loss" coverage, which, for an average of $12, puts home losses on a new basis: it states that you are protected against all damage to your home unless the damage comes from a peril that is specifically ruled out by the policy. In effect, this means that you are protected against everything except flood or earthquake. Some of the uncommon perils, however, call for up to $50 deductible.

A still more complete homeowner policy is the "C" package which would cost our average family $280 for three years. Called the "limousine of packages" by one expert, it adds the following:

1. All physical loss policy. (This costs $12 under "B".)
2. $7,500 insurance on contents for fire and allied perils.
3. $25,000 liability insurance.
4. Worldwide all risk insurance on contents. (This is the costly element of the package, and protects almost all of your property against any insurable loss, anywhere.)

The homeowner package has been described as "ready-made." Buyers who prefer a "custom-tailored" package usually want a comprehensive dwelling policy, or CDP. This package requires the buyer to take a broad coverage for reduced rates, but each segment of CDP is bought separately, and discounts are figured on each one individually. The minimum CDP package provides this coverage:

1. Insurance for 80 percent of the house's value.
2. Insurance for 80 percent of the contents' value. (Under homeowner's policies, you must buy content insurance amounting to at least 40 percent of the home fire insurance. This is often much more than you need.)

Better home insurance

3. $10,000 liability insurance.

4. On-premises theft insurance for at least 20 percent of the contents' value.

By taking advantage of reduced rates in the CDP package, you can get coverage that costs less than a homeowner's policy but, obviously, does not give as wide protection. Within limits, you can also adjust each element of the CDP to give you exactly the protection you need, and no more. This tailoring is not available to homeowner's customers. CDP can also be purchased in one-year policies, at a somewhat higher rate. Homeowner's packages are available for no less than three-year's coverage at a time. But, all in all, if you work up a CDP program to match any homeowner's coverage, the costs are almost identical.

What, then, are the principal differences between the two?

For one thing, CDP protects against electrical mishaps and the malfunction of electrical appliances. Also, CDP makes it easier to get rid of deductibles, if you decide you're willing to pay extra money rather than risk shouldering a certain percentage of the loss yourself.

In the homeowner's package you get inexpensive insurance for high theft and contents coverage.

Perhaps one expert sums it up best when he says, "Generally, if the homeowner's policy fits your needs, it's the wise choice. If you need some adjustments, CDP may be the better buy."

One of the biggest controversies arising from choice between the packages centers around deductibles. The only way to make a decision, the experts agree, is to find out what getting rid of a deductible will really cost you.

For an average family, cutting deductibles from home insurance could cost as much as $10 per thousand dollars of fire insurance. It can add up to quite a high total. The argument in favor of deductible gets further support from the fact that the same family can save up to $17 on premiums by taking a $25-deductible on theft coverage.

The wisest solution is to ask what deductibles could be taken on your policy, and then figure how much each one would save you, as seen against the financial risk.

Soups, Meats

Condensed turkey-noodle soup, minestrone (an Italian-style vegetable soup), and chicken-vegetable soup are three canned-soup newcomers. Each 10½- or 10¾-ounce can, plus water, makes 2 to 3 generous servings.

Fully cooked rolled hams are now available in 1½- to 3-pound units—right size for a family meal. The bone, skin, and most of the fat have been removed. These easy-to-slice hams are vacuum-packed in transparent plastic wrapping.

Wild game birds and meats may now be ordered by the small-quantity buyer. Just a few of the items: venison steaks, elk chops, buffalo or bear roasts, oven-ready pheasants, Scotch grouse, and partridge.

Canned sticks of chopped ham require only 5 minutes to heat—they make a speedy meat for breakfast, lunch, or dinner. Try ham sticks with scrambled eggs, potato salad, or waffles. Each 10-ounce can contains 10 sticks.

Desserts

Lemon-custard angel cake steps into the cake-mix spotlight. It's a tender, light-yellow cake with delicate lemon flavor. The 17-ounce package contains two packets—egg-white mix and flour mix. Cake may bake in a 9-inch square or 10-inch round tube pan, or in two loaf pans.

Frozen lemon pie filling has the good fresh and tangy flavor of a home-kitchen product. For an 8- or 9-inch pie, defrost the contents of the 1-pound 6-ounce can, add 2 or 3 fresh egg yolks, and heat. Use egg whites for pretty meringue topping.

Instant banana-cake mix makes a high, light cake. To the contents of the 1-pound 3-ounce package, add water and 2 eggs. Bake in two 8- or 9-inch layer pans, or in one 9-inch square or 13x9-inch oblong pan.

Extras

Cocoa graham crackers have a subtle chocolate flavor that's sure to please the after-school snackers. And you'll like them rolled to use in crumb crusts. Each 1-pound box contains 3 wrapped packets of crackers.

Club cheese, a blend of Cheddar, Swiss, and blue cheeses, comes packed in 5-inch limed-oak buckets—the perfect Valentine's Day gift for the cheese fan in your house. Each bucket contains 1 pound cheese.

Enriched all-purpose flour in a 14-ounce shaker package is handy when you need just a sprinkle or small measure of flour—for gravies, sauces, and flouring. To coat meats, poultry, or fish with flour, turn the metal lid so the "sprinkle" holes are open. Or twist the lid to the tablespoon-size opening for spooning or pouring flour.

Glazier's points are easy to set when you use a pinch of putty to stick them to window glass while you operate the point setter and hammer.

Tiny dab does the job; it flicks off fast when you are finished. Out of putty? Then stick points to glass with linseed oil which works as well.

Good square storage (this trick works for all types) is quick to get and quicker to make with a piece of scrap.

Run saw kerf down center of stock that's large enough to support blade; screw or nail it to your tool board.

For carpenter's square, use two blocks spaced evenly to support longer blade.

Small nails bend, usually, when they are driven into tough stock like hardboard, maple, birch, oak, and so on.

Next time, try squeezing the nail in jaws of pliers while you pound. The pressure keeps nails straight.

1001 ways to say almost anything to practically everybody

WHATEVER YOU want to tell your friends—from "Happy Coffee Break" to an announcement of the arrival of a litter of kittens—today's greeting cards can do it for you in the bright, "come-to-the-point" style so typical of the Twentieth Century

By Lawrence Lader

Not long ago, most Americans sent greeting cards only in celebration of two or three traditional holidays. Today, things are different. We prod the absent visitor with a picture of an Indian rope-climber, captioned "Come up and see me one of these days." We needle a vacationing associate with an artistic panorama of a ship's galley and dozens of chained slaves pulling wearily at their oars. "Missing you at work," says the caption. To a recently unemployed friend, we send a card of three bums on a park bench with an empty space between them, and the succinct caption: "Welcome back!"

We even celebrate "Blue Monday," a card that has been a runaway best-seller. One young lady from Chicago Heights, Illinois, who sent it to her boy friend, wrote appreciatively to the manufacturer to describe the card's effect: "When everyone in the office looks as though they've had it, he takes out the card, waves it around and says 'Happy Monday!' Then they're good for another couple of hours."

The celebration of such occasions obviously indicates that the habits of the American public and the greeting card itself have gone through a decade of radical change. In that 10 years the number of cards sold annually has soared from 3 to 4½ billions. One company alone turns out 4 million cards a day. A decade ago we spend $220,000,000 on cards annually; now we spend almost $500,000,000.

Behind this amazing growth is a new type of card—more humorous, more sophisticated, more sleekly designed. In contrast to the ornate and often over-sentimental Traditional Card, it's called the Modern Card.

It originated shortly after World War II with a rash of small companies in New York, usually one- or two-man operations turning out silk-screened cards. The sophisticated artistry and biting humor of these craftsmen attracted devoted customers at large department stores and speciality shops. But the demand spread quickly to other cities, then, surprisingly enough, to smaller towns. "We sell almost as many Modern cards in Southern and Midwestern towns as we do in the big cities," said an executive of one new company whose sales have jumped from $1,200 to almost half a million in seven years.

"Why, you'd hardly see anyone in the old days buying a a card except middle-aged and older women," said the owner of a Chicago card shop. "Men were embarrassed; they'd shudder at the hearts and flowers. Now my place is crowded with men. But most of all, it's the younger people—secretaries, newlywed housewives. They've suddenly discovered that the Modern card has as much taste as the museum print they buy for their home."

People seem to want to say things differently today," said one card company executive. "How would you kid your wife about a mink coat in a letter? But you can send her a card with a life-size metal hanger and tell her in verse: 'I picked up a new mink coat, I knew that you'd adore it. Too bad they made me put it back, but here's the hanger for it!' "

The strangest part of this phenomenon is that the rise of the Modern card has in no way [ Turn to page 149

To give unit added dimension, map is hung slightly out from wall.

Two rods inserted through the plywood frame are held at the top and bottom by interesting brass fixtures which are shaped like hands.

Trimly tailored convertible sofa proves appearances can be deceiving—design and upholstery make it hard to tell it serves as bed. In limited space, small benches and stacked cushions are ideal extra seating.

Two lightweight tables in front of sofa can easily be moved elsewhere in room. Impressive hanging is blowup of Paris street map. Photographically enlarged map is coated with paper adhesive, mounted on plywood.

Guess the price of a Million Dollars' Worth of Fun in Florida

Chances are you've spent more on ordinary vacations

These facts are a happy surprise to many new visitors to Florida. Among all families questioned* who toured Florida last year, over half reported they spent less than $10 daily per family member. Only 5.2 percent reported spending $20 or more.

But putting cost aside, the biggest news about Florida vacations is the million-dollars' worth of fun you enjoy. Nowhere else do average budgets buy so many kinds of vacation pleasure.

Take the joy of boating, for example. Every day, Florida boating is a thrilling sport. On sunny, open seas you troll for deep-sea gamesters. On rivers and inland lakes bass are hitting. Lagoons and bays are perfect for water skiing. Cruise among tropic islands in the Florida Keys...or past white sand beaches of Northwest Florida. So bring your boat or rent one here and go exploring.

Don't forget the fine swimming; historic places; scenic splendors; land sports.

Come down to Florida this winter! You need spend no more than the cost of an ordinary vacation, yet you'll have much, much more to do that's fun.

"Did you know Johnny helped us to send him through college?"

When Johnny was 10, his parents struck on a fine idea. They started a savings account for him; and promised that they would meet and match every dollar he put in. There was lawn-mowing money, even baby-sitting money; and later on, 3 months' summer salary through high-school years. With each dollar being matched and with earnings on his savings over the years, Johnny wound up with much of his college education paid for.

Orton Plantation, out of Wilmington, North Carolina, is area's handsomest and best maintained, also the easiest for color-hungry Northerners to visit.

Moss-hung oaks and cypresses, tall camellia trees, and azaleas in every flaming shade are there to see.

By Fleeta Brownell Woodroffe

SPRING'S ON THE WAY, as surely as the days tick past. Already there's a rosy glow of camellias in the far South. The glint of small gold daffodils shows in sunny corners.

Rosy color will creep into the sky as winds grow warm enough to coax the tiny flowers of redbud to open along the dusky branches. The cardinal has changed his song to his thrilling springtime arrangement of delirious cadenzas. Saucy Johnny-jump-ups applaud below.

You can think Spring, or go to meet it in gardens of our own delightful South. →

South Carolina's Cypress Gardens is like no other spot. Imagine yourself in a boat being poled silently between tall cypresses through water black as marble. Birds sing, unafraid.

Color is everywhere on peninsulas and islands —thousands of bulbs, azaleas, camellias.

At Magnolia Gardens, north and west of history-rich Charleston, you explore sanded paths so walled with bloom that your inner conviction is that somehow you've reached Paradise.

The color go_s on and on—beside the river—past lakes—under huge oaks on green lawns.

Middleton Gardens, up Ashley River Road from Magnolia, had beautiful plantings and design 30-odd years before the Revolution; they're still owned by the same family.

Here you glimpse the great terraces across one of Middleton's famed Butterfly Lakes.

Magnolia's bridge links plantation lands owned since 1671.

Cypress Gardens' waterways were once the reservoir for the great rice plantation of Dean Hall. With Middleton, these gardens are a legacy of beauty from the 17th century, a trio from the Carolina Low Country's greatest days.

The biggest displays are fading in the coastal gardens of the Gulf and South Atlantic when Spring comes to Atlanta.

Nowhere does a whole city blossom out any prettier than Atlanta when its dogwoods—first the white, then the pink—open their petals along the streets and in home grounds and the parks, through the first half of April.

A house that makes the "good life" even better

By Dan J. Matthews

HOUSES LIKE OUR COVER HOUSE are the key to Floridians' wonderful way of living. More than structures to ward off sun and occasional strong sea blows, they earn their beautiful beach locations.

How? By equalling inside the fun-loving, carefree atmosphere of their surroundings; this by such things as plantings, furnishings, skylights, choice of materials, location of walks and windows.

This house stands out, but like any good house, it never dominates the surrounding scene. That's a good rule for any house on any site. So look closely at how the architect started with a noteworthy design, then fitted it precisely to soft contours that flow toward seaside.

More pictures on page 158

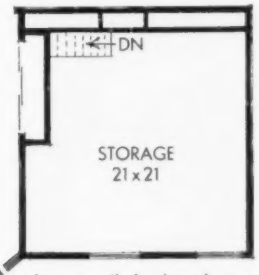
Living area feels cool, remote, although near a well-traveled street and hot Florida sun. It's achieved by soft colors of carpet, draperies. Also the well-shaded windows which face a smooth, blue seascape.

Roof seems to float over strip windows topping sliding glass; fireplace wall is coral rock, with copper hood.



Stacked utility space of garage (below) and storage room (above) effectively divides living and sleeping in this house. Access to storage is by folding stair that lowers into corner of garage.

A home for the whole country

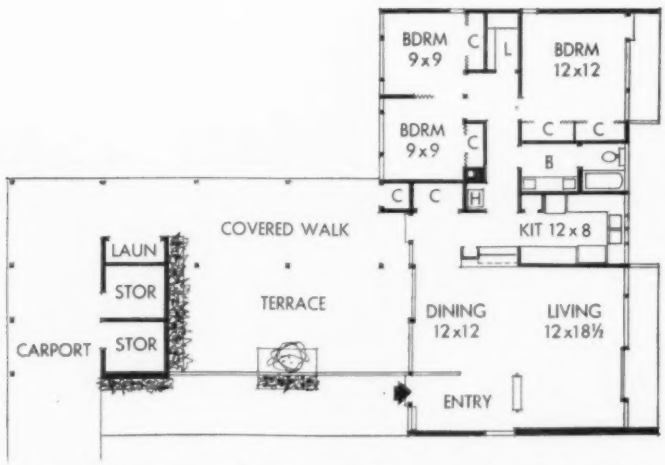
Photographs: Lisanti, Inc.

House is 28 feet at widest point. With carport and covered walk, it spans 73 feet on its lot—an impressive frontage for a really small house. (It's just 1,269 square feet.) Old brick and board-and-batten siding in weathered gray stain are balanced in almost formal pattern across front.

Entry court is all-around outdoor space—easy to use from kitchen and living area. Old brick reappears here on terrace floor.



Rectangular plan is less costly than one with projecting wings. But with fence, covered walk, and carport, total picture is one of house spread out on its lot. Storage rooms adjoin carport. # ★★★★★ FIVE STAR HOME 2802
YOU CAN BUY PLANS®

Today you can build any house you want to build, anywhere you want to build it. So here's a lesson in Florida living—a good way to live anywhere!

By John Normile, A.I.A.

Houses like this are no longer labeled "regional" and limited to moderate climates. Today, a good house is still a good house—built in St. Paul or St. Petersburg.

This month's Five Star home is no exception. It's located in Tampa, Florida. And it has all the exciting planning features that once never strayed from Tampa or like climates. Now, with modern materials, methods, and machines, it is possible to have this kind of living no matter where you build.

Five Star Home No. 2802 is distinctive in its small-house bigness. By attaching a roofed walk and connecting fence to the carport, it appears twice its real size.

Windows form exterior walls of the living and dining rooms—a visual boost in space as well as view and light. Outdoor living is sheltered and private, with the larger terrace between the house and carport. (See plan)

More on page 152

Florida folks live outdoors. Granted, they have more opportunity. But translate this scene to Minnesota—and it's still believable. Modern insulating materials, today's planning make it possible.

Entry-dining partition continues outdoors to fence terrace. Boards are fastened on alternate sides of posts to achieve pattern, ventilation. Terrace bricks are laid in vertical and horizontal sections.

Florida holds no patent on the light, open look in today's building. But the Florida climate was among the first to encourage it. Now, with insulating glass, modern construction techniques, improved heating, the Florida house is a good house anywhere. Old brick is exposed inside as well as out. Divider (right) is what guests view from entrance—rather than looking directly into living room.

Floridians like color, informality in their decorating. The sun's so much a part of their living outdoors, they remind themselves of it indoors. Yellow, orange, beige, white are set off against dark backgrounds. Upkeep's easy with terrazzo floors, striated-plywood walls, marble-topped tables, fabrics like pandanus cloth.

Forecast for the future

In 1970, the completion of our $51 billion network of superhighways will make America a nation of neighbors. The man from Boston will visit the Rockies as easily as the man from Seattle will drive to Manhattan.

- Traffic fatalities will be reduced by 3,500 a year.
- Car operating costs will go down a penny a mile, saving the average car owner about $100 annually.
- Vacationers will travel farther, have more time in vacation areas.
- Commuters will travel 50 miles in the time it now takes to go 15.
- City dwellers will save an average of 66 hours a year driving to work.
- Auto makers will offer "turnpike cruisers" for long distance comfort. The whole outlook: greater utility, convenience, and safety.

What the new freeways will mean to you

By Ray Vicker

On Chicago's northwest side, bulldozers are clearing a lane amid construction-scarred rubble, opening the way for a new eight-lane highway linking the downtown area with a superhighway to Wisconsin. In Cincinnati, the eight-lane Millcreek Expressway is being sliced through the city. In Maryland, engineers plan a new Baltimore-Washington route.

These projects are widely separated. But they have one thing in common. Each is a part of the new federal highway program now underway—a program that is going to change your life in many ways.

Today that program is piecing together a new highway network, with parts beginning to take shape like sections of a jigsaw puzzle. Bit by bit over the next 13 years the nation will be provided with a network of 41,000 miles of stoplight-free superhighways—much of it toll-free.

You will feel results of this program in relief from traffic congestion, reduced costs in operating and maintaining your automobile, greater safety on the road, increased home and property values, happier vacationing, and in a dozen other ways.

Creating an up-to-date background for furnishings with which they like to live worked wonders in the Charles M. Singleton home in Kansas City

Getting rid of all unnecessary furnishings, rearranging rest, gives spacious look without any real remodeling.

AFTER background was simplified, lovely furnishings showed to best advantage. Smaller pattern in hall coordinates dining-chair seats, wallpaper, and the living-room paint color.

AFTER view shows difference. Wallpaper with a more definite, over-all pattern and wall-to-wall carpeting unify room. Clock was removed from buffet to give portrait importance.

BEFORE, too many patterns made it difficult to see, appreciate assets of these rooms. Contrasting woodwork made rooms look smaller, more cut up than they were. Chair blocks traffic to hall.

BEFORE. The dining-room furniture had nice lines, was decidedly worth keeping. But the long, dark draperies had a skimpy look, and furnishings in the room needed to be tied together.

Gold Cup and Fusilier are winning floribundas

Gold Cup (left) supplies a dependable yellow for summer beds, is especially good for landscape effects.

Fusilier—Redcoat to you!—is the sauciest, brightest red you can meet. It has a wonderful inbred ability to hold its color in hottest sun as well as where nights are cool. Three plants will give you a full regiment of lively colored blooms on 24- to 30-inch stems.

Floribundas give you lots of color

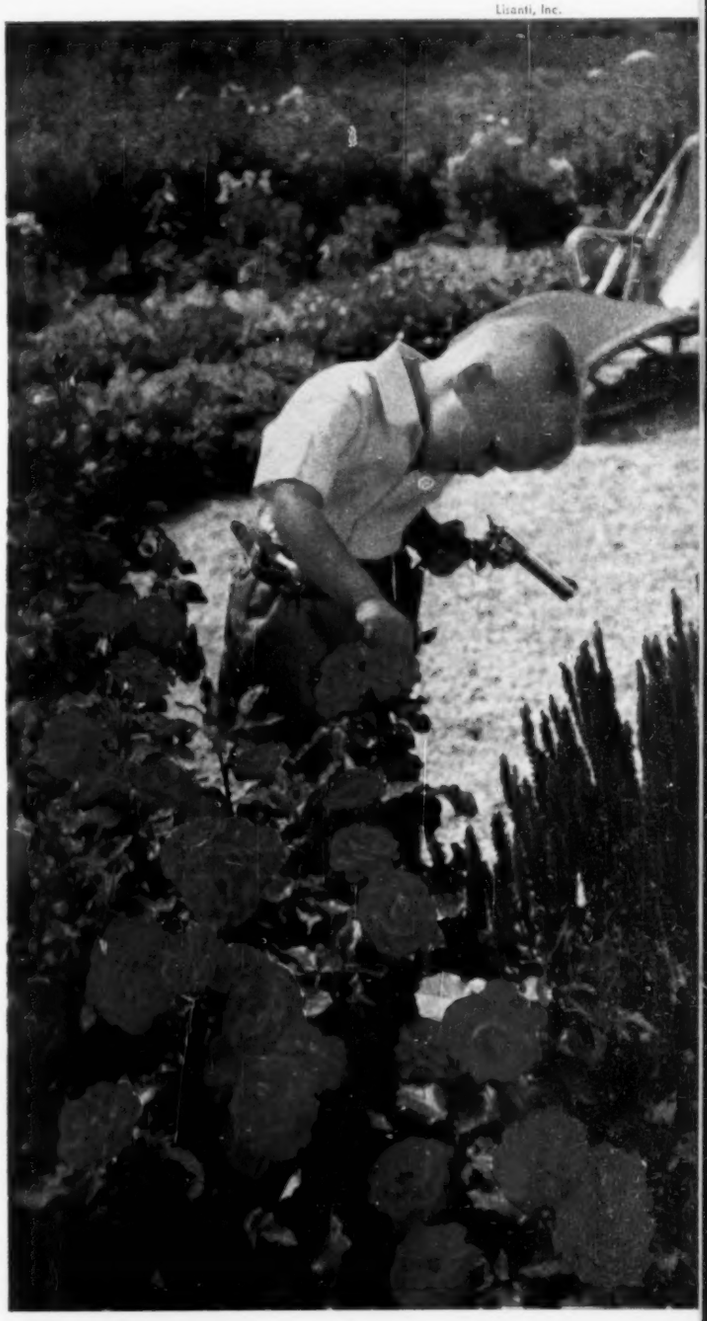
- Plants are bushy, each makes big outdoor show.
- With many stems, they bloom more days each season.
- Short ones make fine edgings, taller ones good hedges.
- Flowers are easy to use in informal bouquets.

Lisanti, Inc.



MOST TALKED ABOUT of the new roses you can plant this spring will be these three latest winners of the All-America Rose Selections. They are of the two most popular rose classes—the floribundas and hybrid teas. They fit into both beds and borders. Choose these or other varieties in their classes, and you'll have no waiting. Set plants this spring and you'll have beautiful roses to thrill over by June

Rose White Knight is a superb hybrid tea

It's a great day when a new white rose for growing in gardens wins in rigid, nationwide tests. White Knight is the latest to do this. Perfect in form at both bud stage and in full bloom, this '58 winner has a delicate and delightful green tint in the heart of each flower as it opens.

Other novel colors are seen in Lavender Lady; Isobel Harkness—18-carat gold; Aztec—bright as dancing fire.

Hybrid tea roses have blooms perfect for display

- The big, high-centered blooms come singly on long stems as though designed for cutting.
- Upright plants let you grow more varieties in a garden bed.
- They are your best bets for exhibition and show entries.
- Wide range of colors runs from whites, through orange and the hot and cool pinks, to every imaginable red.

How to adapt this color scheme to one of your own rooms

Study this photograph carefully and consider the color distribution. Note the mass of olive green on the beds, the large area of turquoise in the carpeting, the tiny accents of purple in upholstery and accessories. Then see how we have transposed the same colors to a Contemporary living room and a Traditional bedroom. Now found in the low-price range, these high-style colors permit elegance on a budget.

Let us show you how to . . .

Adapt costly ideas to a budget room

The bedroom opposite breathes luxury—fieldstone wall, fine furnishings, expensive fabrics. But the rich colors are the key to the dramatic effect. See how they create the same aura of luxury when used in less costly rooms

By Florence Byerly

Same colors, same styling in your budget living room

Now the olive green appears in a sturdy, inexpensive sofa covered with plasticized fabric, and in the polished cotton draperies—only $1.50 a yard. Synthetic sheer used for cafe curtains costs $6.95—but this style uses a minimum of fabric.

Iridescent turquoise of expensive deep-pile carpet is simulated by blue and green acrylic tweed at $10.95 a yard.

Purple appears in the striped fabric and the other upholstered chair. Fireplace is the same—a prefab at $200. Fabulous fieldstone wall has been faked—it's a textured plastic costing about $40.

Same Contemporary colors in your Traditional bedroom

Olive green bedspreads look the same—but these are ready-mades at $7.95. Glass curtains are also olive green, in a solution-dyed rayon at $1.00 a yard. Multicolored draperies are made of polished cotton in a geometric print at $2.25 a yard.

Turquoise is on the floor again but this time it's an inexpensive vinyl tile with a striated effect. A washable white shag rug provides striking contrast.

Purple touches are introduced in the chair cushion and in the braided rug—a do-it-yourself economy measure color-keyed to striped upholstery opposite.

Need another carport or garage?

Small lot, old house, limited funds needn't prevent your improving the car shelter at your home. And it's not just your car that'll profit!

By Dave Swartwout

Hip-roofed ranch house, on wide but shallow lot, presents problem of blending old with new

TYPICAL ONE-STORY home of recent years has space for only one car. To double that, on a shallow lot, new two-car garage is built with breezeway joining it to house.

Care is taken to blend roof line, match hip ending. Over-all appearance is improved by having the larger garage to balance bedroom wing (this also saves back-yard space for outdoor living). The old garage has been absorbed into family living space. A large glass area now replaces the old garage door.

Separate garage, with back-alley access, is too small for an up-to-date automobile

Photographs: Hopkins

USUAL REMEDY of adding space to side, opening another door to alley, is given novel twist here. Carport built at side is open toward house, offers more pleasant view than back of garage. It's wide enough for two cars (old part becomes storage) or part can be used for covered terrace.

Gently curving drive still leads to alley, but now there's a wall facing that public driveway. Seldom-used back corner of lot is utilized and freed from most maintenance woes.

It's a tossup whether this sort of expansion stems from need for space indoors or space outdoors. Two cars are common with larger families, living farther out. The second car should be sheltered; the growing family needs more living space. Where to turn? The garage can be the key to a dozen desirable changes in your home.

These models of four typical houses show two ways each can shelter another car. And the other half of the story is just as important—the extras—storage, outdoor living and play areas, sheltered entry.

Two-story Traditional house is cramped on lot too narrow for expansion to side

OLDER HOUSES frequently have more front lawn than is needed. And they're skimpy on space at sides.

The best way to expand is to grow toward street. It's done by extending an economical, flat-roof carport. A lot of thought went into tying elements together, successfully blending two roof styles. Carport is brought around to form sheltered walk to front door. This strong horizontal line makes the house appear longer, lower.

Circular drive adds an impressive touch, while it reduces lawn maintenance. Guests can park here. Car in carport can back here when access to garage is needed.

Newer home has carport with room for only one car . . . not enough storage space

BACK-YARD space is used for this expansion. First, carport storage wall was moved. Then, drive was extended to new, two-car garage.

This new building adds more than a doubled parking space. It includes space at left for a large storeroom, or perhaps a workshop. The garage screens outdoor living area on one corner; the back wall is carried across to form a fence along rear lot line.

Former carport emerges as a porte-cochere, covered entry—valuable for rainy day playing or unloading the car near the kitchen.

Variations on these carports and garages on page 136

Winter flair with short-stem flowers

By Fae Huttenlocher

YOU CAN do big things with little flowers. They're just as easy to arrange and can be just as effective as larger, more pretentious blooms. Use them—in graceful miniatures or solid masses of color—to highlight the small but important space. You'll be delighted with the beauty and charm they bring to your home

The coral-red blossoms and glossy green leaves of begonia semperflorens make a jewel-like accent for the tea tray. Cut each stem a different length and fix in triangular position.

Photographs: Hopkins; Weymouth

Use a short-stem flower arrangement as a bookend. Here, early spring tulips and forced mountain currant branches are pretty in a heavy glass basket. A needlepoint holder keeps them in place. Arrangements like this are perfect for a desk or console table.

Early cottage and candystick tulips combine with red leaf plum branches to provide a bright note of color and graceful charm for the occasional table.

The branches give the arrangement the height and importance required by the tall table lamp. Without them it would be out of scale in this setting.

Centerpieces for the dining table should complement rather than compete with your basic table appointments. Here, Rudolph Schaeffer, of the Schaeffer School of Design in San Francisco, masses full-blown ranunculus and daisies to create a rich color harmony.

There'll be no solemn conversations while a mosaic of laughing pansy faces brightens the coffee table.

Pansies are prettier — and much more fun — when they are massed in colorful array. Use a low bowl or ivy-ring. For height, add a porcelain bird figurine, a winging butterfly, or hovering bee.

This family kitchen roosts in the treetops

By Anne Anderson

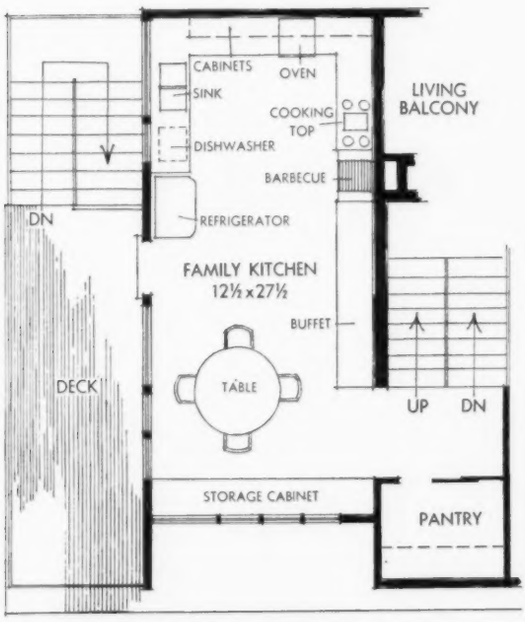
There's lots of room, convenience, and living in this family kitchen. In fact, this is true of the entire house. To add interest to the space they needed, the Paul McGees of Minneapolis built a five-level house—with the kitchen on fourth level in the treetops. Entry is on third or street level. Besides having a panoramic view, kitchen is fine "lookout."

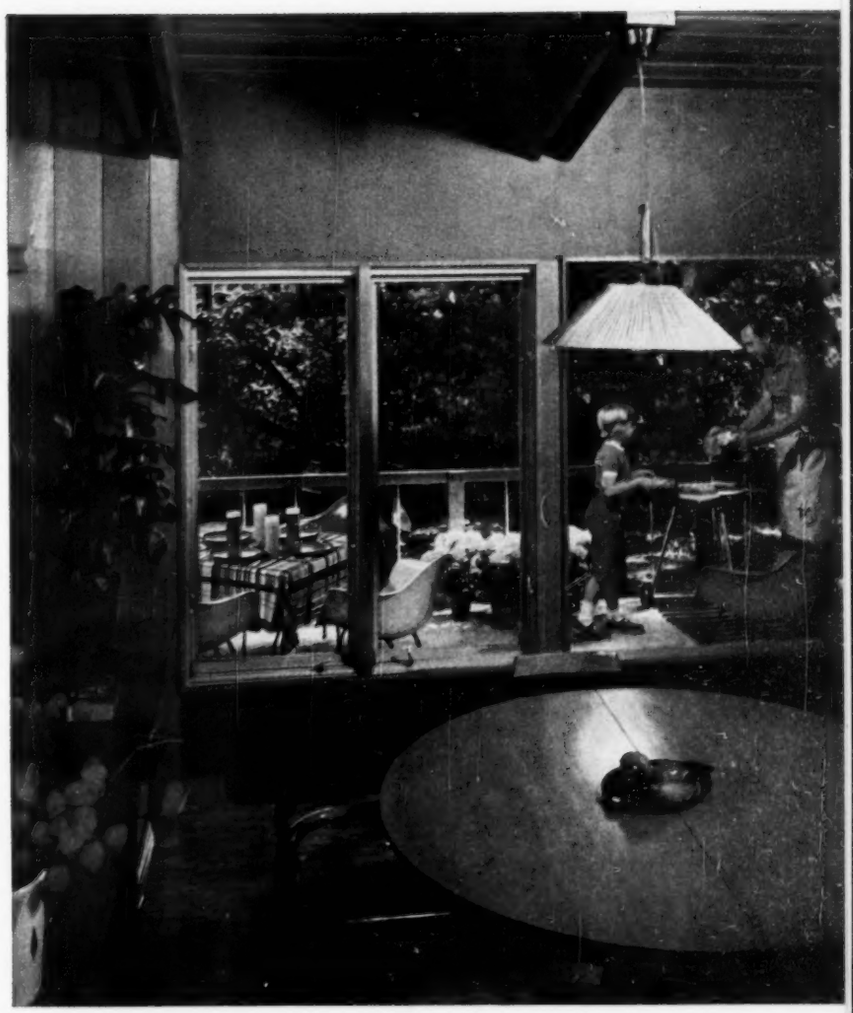
Fifth-level living room opens to kitchen so dinner guests can visit with Mrs. McGee when she tends to last-minute jobs. Be our guest. Explore ideas for your family kitchen.

Open-beam ceiling extends the visual space of this popular, busy family kitchen. Why is this handsome room so good?

It has a spacious and well-planned work center, an indoor barbecue grill, a deck for outdoor barbecues and lazy bird-watching, two walls of windows to bring the outside in, a large dining table and comfortable chairs, place for games and studying, good storage, counters galore for informal buffets.



The successful blend of three areas lets the McGees enjoy the ultimate in family living—compact U-shape work center, roomy dining area, and outdoor take-it-easy deck.



Come warm weather and the McGee family moves out on deck for barbecues. Little Sarah loves to help.

Extended roof provides some protection in case of a sudden shower.

Since this treetop deck is adjacent to the kitchen, meals outdoors are easy to handle and enjoyable. It's no problem to set the table or clean up with supplies so close.

Photographs: Warren Reynolds. Architects: Griffith and Oschwald. Data: Elizabeth Clemons

Bird's-eye view of this kitchen from the fifth-level living room is exciting as well as practical.

With this arrangement, Mrs. McGee says she no longer feels left out of activities when the family entertains—someone is always within talking distance. Here, son David leans over half wall to ask Mom a question.

Note interesting effect created by open-beam, pitched ceiling and expanse of windows. Cost of large kitchen was held down by using inexpensive but sturdy materials—concrete block, pine cabinets with pressed plywood doors.

By Murial Hanna Redner

Friendly as a hearty handshake, intriguing as the history behind it. Those are the impressions you get when you enter this kitchen-family room. Though just newly remodeled, these rooms retain all the Colonial charm of the century-old farmhouse—but with modern conveniences, appliances, cabinets.

Loving country life, the homeowners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sigety, moved from the city into scenic and historic Bucks County in Pennsylvania. They found a huge, old farmhouse in sound condition and in an ideal location, so they decided to buy and remodel it for today's living. Their three children—Birge 5, Kinne 3, and Robin 1½—find the wide-open spaces ideal for play—inside and out.

BEFORE. Note sturdy beams, floor, and walls of old farmhouse—important when buying to remodel. Needed: Better planning, modernization. Wall at left was taken out, porch beyond became kitchen.

The open kitchen blends in with the warm decorative theme of the family room. Steel cabinets have birch doors above, warm beige color on base units. Refrigerator was sprayed to match.

Though kitchen is a narrow 9x22 feet, Mrs. Sigety was able to include excellent storage, work areas, and appliances by careful planning. She even had room for two gas ovens and a laundry center (see plan). Wall divider is French terra cotta tile with old copper engraving plates for points of interest. Note the small dining table and chairs for the Sigety youngsters. Marble peninsula top is ideal for rolling out pastry.

From this side, you can see the wonderful relationship between kitchen and family room—Mrs. Sigety can visit with her family while she prepares meals.

Close-up of the cooking center shows practical installation of gas burners—a cluster of four to the left, and a two-burner unit to the right. A stainless-steel counter separates them. There's also a roomy maple cutting top at extreme left—always ready for use.

AFTER. Huge old fireplace continues to be cozy center. Here you see Grandma Snell and little Robin enjoying fire's glow. Warm, metallic color tones were used to pick up and blend with natural old pine and oak of original farmhouse. Mrs. Sigety's collection of heirloom accessories completes Early American look. Room in left background was part of old kitchen, is now Mrs. Sigety's planning area.

BEFORE. Old kitchen was at end of house, away from dining room.

AFTER. New arrangement adds more livability to charming house.

Tiny home office just off family room makes fine "think" spot just a bit away, yet close enough so Mrs. Sigety can watch children at play. Cabinet, salvaged from old kitchen and repainted, makes handsome display case for more antiques. Old cabbage shredder at right became a wall hanging, is prettied up with dry flowers.

Salad beauties in layer style

Call on these good flavor ensembles to lend a happy note to February's special days. Come Valentine time, how about Salad Hearts, our center attraction? They're frozen salads made of a rich, creamy, fruit-cocktail mixture with tiny fluffs of marshmallow—and a full measure of love, of course. Unmold atop juicy pineapple slices, then decorate with Gelatin Heart Cutouts to make three tiers in all. Serve with In-the-pink Mayonnaise.

To the left you see Grapefruit Surprise Squares. A walnut-dotted layer of cream cheese is sandwiched between layers of lemon-flavored gelatin: luscious grapefruit sections and maraschino cherries are captured inside. Give each serving a frame of leaf lettuce and a pair of cherries—stems left on. [ Turn to page 124

Budget buys make dandy dinners

Photographs: Allen Snook, Inc.

No need to choose hamburger every time you want to pull in the purse strings. There are lots of penny-wise beef cuts. True, most of these cuts require long, slow cooking, but they pay you back in delicious flavor.

Take beef short ribs, shown above. Can't beat 'em for a homespun, satisfying meal. They are the tip ends of the elegant rib roast. Cut in 2- to 4-inch lengths, they have layers of lean meat and fat, a bone along one side.

Short ribs of beef...

cook at a lazy bubble to bring out flavor

For that tempting brown color and rich meat flavor, roll the ribs in flour, then brown slowly on all sides in a little hot fat. Drain off excess fat and save for making Onion Gravy later on. Season meat, add half a cup of water.

Cover and cook gently till fork tender. Electric saucepan with controlled heat does superb job — no pot watching.

Here we're picking out a sirloin-tip roast, a boneless triangular cut weighing 3 to 4 pounds. Other good choices: arm or round-bone pot roast; blade-bone pot roast; boned rump pot roast; heel of round.

How to make these cuts tender, delicious? About 3 hours' cooking time . . . moderate heat in the oven, or simmering temperature (below boiling) top of range . . . and cooking covered with a little liquid in the pan.

Sirloin-tip roast...

cook to perfection top of range or in oven

First coat meat with flour, then brown — bottom, top, sides. Don't hurry this step — shift meat now and then so it doesn't stick. Sprinkle with salt, pepper; add small amount of water or tomato juice. Cover tightly and cook slowly.

About an hour before meat is done, add vegetables (see above). When all is tender, make Pot-roast Gravy.

4 SUPER BEEF DISHES

The best Chocolate torte we ever tasted!

Photographs: Mike Nelson

It's a dazzler—the kind you can serve the bridge club and be confident the compliments will be tossed your way. And it's easier than it looks! Chocolate Torte Royale is "built" of a crunchy cinnamon-meringue crust daintily lined with pure chocolate, filled with spiced whipped cream, then with spiced chocolate whipped cream! Top with puff of plain whipped cream and a sprinkle of pecan slices.

Be sure to cut your torte at the table so guests can watch for all the luscious layers. Rich, rich, rich—one torte this size makes refreshments for two foursomes.

Chocolate Torte Royale

Cinnamon Meringue Shell

2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vinegar
• • •
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Cover a cooky sheet with piece of heavy paper; draw an 8-inch circle in center. Beat egg whites, salt, and vinegar till soft peaks form. Blend sugar, cinnamon; gradually add to egg whites, beating till very stiff peaks form and all sugar has dissolved. Spread within circle, making the bottom ½ inch thick and mounding around edge, making it 1¾ inches high. For trim, form ridges on outside with back of teaspoon. Bake in very slow oven (275°) 1 hour; turn off heat and let dry in oven (door closed) about 2 hours. Peel off paper.

Twin Cream Fillings

1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate pieces
2 beaten egg yolks
¼ cup water
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Melt the chocolate over hot, not boiling water. Cool slightly, then spread 2 tablespoons of the chocolate over bottom of cooled meringue shell. To remaining chocolate, add egg yolks, water; blend. Chill till mixture is thick. Combine cream, sugar, and cinnamon; whip till stiff. Spread half over chocolate in shell; fold remainder into chocolate mixture and spread on top. Chill several hours or overnight. Trim with whipped cream, pecans. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

While you follow the recipe, glance at these success tips for shell and filling

For pretty shell: Beat the cinnamoned meringue till stiff peaks form—they should still look glossy. Cover a cooky sheet with heavy paper (or the new, no-stick silicone-treated paper); on it draw a circle, using 8-inch round pan as your guide.

Spread meringue inside circle, building up sides. With back of teaspoon, ripple edge. Bake in very slow oven to dry out shell so it'll be crisp, tender.

A chocolate lining! Give the baked shell a thin coat of semisweet chocolate. Melt the whole package of chocolate pieces, but use only 2 tablespoons for this job. (To the remainder add the egg yolks and water; chill till thick.)

Always melt semisweet chocolate pieces over hot water; remove from heat soon as melted—this kind of chocolate won't get thinner with further heating.

Twin cream fillings! Place torte shell on serving plate—no transfer problem later. Whip heavy cream, sugar, and cinnamon together till stiff. Pile half into shell. This is the first layer.

Then fold remaining spiced whipped cream into the chilled chocolate mixture. There's your second luscious filling to spoon atop. Chill torte a few hours or overnight, then trim as shown.

Sunny pies—lemon and orange

Begins on page 76

Orange-blossom Pie

Talk about refreshing! Beautiful! Luscious eating!—

2 cups orange sections, white membrane removed (5 to 7 oranges)
½ cup sugar
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 9-inch Ginger-cooky Crust
• • •
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
⅓ cup sugar
Orange juice
1 cup orange sections, white membrane removed (2 to 3 oranges)
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Sprinkle 2 cups orange sections with ½ cup sugar; set aside for ½ hour. Spread cream cheese evenly over bottom of cooled Ginger-cooky Crust. Blend cornstarch with ⅓ cup sugar in saucepan. Drain and reserve syrup from sweetened orange sections; add enough orange juice to syrup to measure 1 cup; stir into cornstarch mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, till thick and clear; cool to use as glaze. Place drained sweetened orange sections atop cream cheese in shell. Place halved gingersnaps around edge of pieplate to match picture. Pour ½ cup glaze over oranges in shell. Arrange 1 cup orange sections (drained) in spiral around edge of pie. Cover with remaining glaze. Chill till top is set, about 1 hour. Pile whipped cream in center of pie. Ginger-cooky Crust: Mix 1½ cups fine gingersnap crumbs (approximately 24 gingersnaps) and ¼ cup soft butter until well combined. Press into bottom and half way up sides of buttered 9-inch pieplate. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 8 minutes. Cool.

Lemon Meringue Pie
(For 9-inch pie)

You'll be proud to serve this pie. The lemon filling is tangy, creamy smooth. The meringue is billowy and golden brown—

1½ cups sugar
7 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash salt
1½ cups water
3 beaten egg yolks
• • •
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup lemon juice
1 9-inch baked pastry shell
• • •
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon lemon juice
6 tablespoons sugar

In saucepan, combine 1½ cups sugar, the cornstarch, and salt. Stir in water. Bring to boiling over medium heat and cook, stirring constantly, till thick, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks, then return to hot mixture. Bring to boiling and cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add lemon peel and butter. Slowly stir in ½ cup lemon juice. Cool to lukewarm, stirring frequently to prevent "film." Pour into cooled baked pastry shell. Beat egg whites with 1 teaspoon lemon juice until soft peaks form. Gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar, beating until stiff peaks form and all sugar has dissolved (test with fingers). Spread meringue over filling, sealing to edges of pastry to avoid shrinking. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 12 to 15 minutes or until meringue is golden brown. Cool pie thoroughly before serving. Tasting-Test Kitchen note: For a short cut, call on a can of frozen lemon pie filling. This new product has fresh flavor, tastes like homemade. You add egg yolks to the filling and heat, then make the meringue from the whites.

Lemon Meringue Pie
(For 8-inch pie)

1¼ cups sugar
⅓ cup cornstarch
Dash salt
1¼ cups water
2 beaten egg yolks
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 baked 8-inch pastry shell
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ cup sugar

Follow method above.

Sunshine Chiffon Pie
(For 9-inch pie)

Tart and sweet, orange-y and lemon-y, light as a cloud—perfection!—

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
½ cup sugar
Dash salt
4 egg yolks
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon grated orange peel
• • •
4 egg whites
⅙ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup sugar
1 baked 9-inch Orange Pastry Shell

Thoroughly mix gelatin, ½ cup sugar, and salt in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks, fruit juices, and water; stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, just till mixture comes to boiling. Remove from heat; stir in grated peels. Chill, stirring occasionally, till mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites till frothy; add cream of tartar; beat till soft peaks form. Gradually add ⅓ cup sugar, beating till stiff peaks form; fold in gelatin mixture. Pile into cooled, baked Orange Pastry Shell. Chill till firm. Garnish with whipped cream and candy orange slices, if desired. Orange Pastry Shell: Use orange juice instead of water in Plain Pastry recipe.

Sunshine Chiffon Pie
(For 8-inch pie)

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup sugar
Dash salt
3 egg yolks
⅓ cup lemon juice
⅓ cup orange juice
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon grated orange peel
• • •
3 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ cup sugar
• • •
1 baked 8-inch Orange Pastry Shell

Follow method above.

Plain Pastry

1½ cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
4 to 5 tablespoons cold water

Sift together flour and salt; cut in shortening with pastry-blender or blending fork till pieces are the size of small peas. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the water over part of mixture. Gently toss with fork; push to one side of bowl. Sprinkle next tablespoon water over dry part; mix lightly; push to moistened part at side. Repeat till all is moistened. Gather up with fingers; form into ball. For double-crust pie, divide dough for lower and upper crust. Form each into ball. Flatten ball slightly and roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured surface. If edges split, pinch together. Always roll from center out to edge. Use light strokes. Makes enough pastry for one 8- or 9-inch double-crust pie or 4 to 6 tart shells.

To bake single-crust pie shells: Fit pastry into pieplate and trim ½ to 1 inch beyond edge; fold under and flute. Prick bottom and sides well with a fork to prevent puffing as shell bakes. Bake in very hot oven (450°) till pastry is golden, 10 to 12 minutes.

Corn oil has a place in well-balanced meals

Everybody needs fat in their daily diet—and the kind of fat is important, too.

You may have read some of the many articles about the importance of unsaturated fats in our daily meals. Many well-known nutritional authorities recommend that from one-third to one-half of all the fats we eat should be in the form of unsaturated fat such as corn oil. And Mazola is natural corn oil . . . made from golden corn!

Make your own tart pans

You'll have little pans for little pies in only seconds! Each tart shell gets a tailor-made jacket of aluminum foil

By Virginia Heffington

Vanilla-fluff Tarts—filling's pudding mix

Busy day? Then try this dessert—delicious! And easy. You fashion the frilly pastry shells with aluminum foil.

To make filling: Prepare 1 package vanilla pudding according to package directions, but decrease milk to $1\frac{3}{4}$ cups. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla. Chill; beat smooth. Whip $\frac{1}{2}$ cup heavy cream; fold into pudding. Spoon into baked tart shells and trim with rich curls of shaved chocolate.

← Cherry Tarts—open a can for the filling

These cherry wonders are just 20 minutes from inspiration to table—including the baked pastry. Call on a stick of pastry mix, a can of cherry-pie mix, and a package of cream cheese.

Here's how: Soften one 3-ounce package cream cheese. Spread on bottoms of the baked tart shells. Use 1 No. 2 can ($2\frac{1}{2}$ cups) cherry-pie filling and spoon into shells. Chill if you like. Top with a dollop of whipped cream cheese.

There are no pans to wash—toss away foil after baking

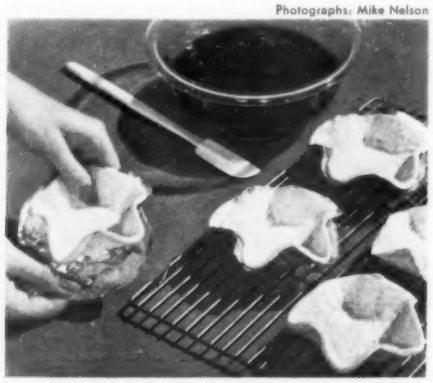
Photographs: Mike Nelson

For 5 tarts, make pastry from recipe calling for $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour. Or use 1 stick pastry mix. Roll the pastry to $\frac{1}{8}$ inch. Cut in 5-inch circles. Lightly press a pastry round atop same-size circle of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Prick pastry with fork.

Now you're ready to shape the pans and tarts. Holding pastry and foil together, flute edges to form in tart shells—it will take about 5 crimps. Bake on cooky sheet in very hot oven (450°) 10 minutes or till the pastry is a golden brown.



Cool the baked tart shells on a wire rack. Remove foil. Next comes the filling. Here we're using cherry as above. Another good filling: Scoops of vanilla ice cream topped with your favorite chocolate sauce and toasted slivered almonds.

1 recipe Traditional Onion Gravy or Easy Onion Gravy

Trim excess fat from ribs and heat fat in Dutch oven. Roll short ribs in flour; slowly brown on all sides in the hot fat. When meat is thoroughly browned, spoon off fat. Sprinkle meat with 1 teaspoon salt and dash pepper; add water. Cover and simmer* till tender, about 2 hours. (Add more water if needed during cooking.) Lift meat from the stock to warm platter; keep meat hot while you make onion gravy. Makes 6 servings. Tasting-Test Kitchen note: If you're using an electric saucepan, brown ribs at 400°, then reduce temperature to 200° for simmering.

*Or cover and cook in slow to moderate oven (325° to 350°) 2 hours or till tender.

Traditional Onion Gravy: Skim fat from short-rib stock, reserving 3 tablespoons. Measure stock and add hot water to make 2 cups; set aside. Put 3 tablespoons reserved fat in skillet; add 4 cups sliced onions and cook till tender but not brown. Remove from heat. Push onions to one side and blend 3 tablespoons enriched flour into fat. Slowly stir in meat stock. Return to heat, and cook, stirring constantly, till gravy is bubbling all over. Add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ½ teaspoon kitchen bouquet. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Continue cooking slowly about 5 minutes, stirring now and then. Pour over braised short ribs or serve in warmed gravy boat.

Easy Onion Gravy: Skim fat from short-rib stock. Measure stock and add hot water to make 3 cups; pour into Dutch oven. Heat to boiling. Meanwhile thoroughly combine 3 tablespoons enriched flour with 1 envelope onion-soup mix. Gradually stir flour-onion mixture into hot stock; cook, stirring constantly till gravy thickens. Simmer about 7 minutes longer, stirring now and then.

Sirloin-tip Roast with Vegetables

All the good flavors mingle in this meal-in-one special—

3 to 4 pounds sirloin-tip roast
Enriched flour
Salt and pepper
1 medium onion, sliced
2 bay leaves
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup hot water
• • •
8 small onions, peeled
8 medium carrots, pared
8 small or 4 halved medium potatoes, pared

Sprinkle meat lightly with flour and rub in. Brown slowly on all sides in a little hot fat in Dutch oven. Season with 2 teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Add sliced onion, bay leaves, garlic, and water. Cover and cook in moderate oven (350°)* about 1½ hours or till almost tender. Add vegetables and sprinkle with 1½ teaspoons salt. Cover and continue to cook 1 hour or till meat and vegetables are done. Remove to a warm platter; thicken liquid for Pot-roast Gravy. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Tasting-Test Kitchen note: If your sirloin-tip roast is from top-grade beef, you may roast it uncovered and without water as you would a rolled rib roast. Roast in slow oven (325°) to rare, medium, or well-done, according to meat thermometer. A 4-pound roast requires about 2½ hours for medium-rare. Cook vegetables separately, top of range.

*Or cook slowly in covered Dutch oven, top of range. If necessary, add a little extra water during cooking.

Pot-roast Gravy: Skim most of fat from meat stock. For 1½ to 2 cups stock, use these proportions: Put ½ cup cold water into a shaker, then add ¼ cup enriched flour; shake to mix. (Or place flour in small bowl. Stir in a little of the water to make smooth paste; stir in remaining water.) Remove stock from heat and slowly stir in flour mixture. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, till gravy is bubbling all over. Now add kitchen bouquet if desired. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Continue cooking about 5 minutes, stirring now and then.

Brown Beef Stew

Invigorating, nourishing, just right on a snappy cold day—

2 pounds beef stew meat, cut in 1½-inch cubes
2 tablespoons fat
4 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice (optional)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 clove garlic
1 medium onion, sliced
1 to 2 bay leaves
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
Dash allspice or cloves
• • •
6 carrots, quartered
1 pound (18 to 24) small white onions

Thoroughly brown the meat on all sides in hot fat; add water, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, garlic, sliced onion, bay leaves, and seasonings. Cover; simmer 2 hours, stirring occasionally to keep from sticking. Remove bay leaves and garlic. Add carrots and onions. (Cubed potatoes may be added, too.) Cover and continue cooking 30 minutes, or till vegetables are done. Remove the meat and vegetables and thicken liquid for gravy. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

To thicken stew: Skim most of fat from stew liquid. For 3 cups stock, use these proportions: Put ½ cup water into a shaker, then add ¼ cup enriched flour. (Or place flour in small bowl and stir in a little of the water to make a smooth paste; stir in remaining water.) Remove stock from heat and slowly stir in flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, till gravy is bubbling all over. Continue cooking about 5 minutes, stirring now and then. Pour over the meat cubes and vegetables.

Pizza Minute Steaks

Here herbed tomato sauce, Mozzarella cheese give the steak an Italian accent—

6 minute steaks, ¼ pound each
2 tablespoons olive or salad oil
1 clove garlic, minced
2 8-ounce cans (2 cups) seasoned tomato sauce
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon basil
Dash pepper
6 thin slices Mozzarella cheese

Brown steaks quickly in hot oil. Add garlic, tomato sauce, water, and seasonings. Simmer uncovered, turning steaks occasionally, till sauce is thick (45 to 60 minutes). Top each steak with cheese slice. Skim off excess fat if necessary before serving. Garnish with parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Stuffed Flank Steaks with Creole Sauce

Each slice of moist, tender steak is filled with savory bread stuffing—

⅓ cup chopped onion
4 cups dry bread cubes
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Dash pepper
2 flank steaks (about 1¾ pounds total), scored
1 1-pound can (2 cups) tomatoes
1 cup water
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup catsup
• • •
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 4-ounce can (1 cup) sliced mushrooms

Cook ⅓ cup chopped onion in a little hot fat till golden; add bread cubes and seasonings; toss in skillet till bread is lightly toasted. Spread stuffing over steaks and roll as for jelly roll; fasten with toothpicks; lace with string. Roll in flour and brown on all sides in a little hot fat; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add tomatoes, water, ¼ cup onion, and catsup. Cover; simmer 1¾ to 2 hours, or until tender; add green pepper, mushrooms (and liquid) last 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Blender tips to save time and work

By Anne Anderson

Don't let the versatile blender stand idle. Let it do all your bothersome and time-consuming chopping, mincing, blending, mixing jobs. Dieters, note: Use blender to concoct low-calorie salad dressings

Quick blender tricks you'll want to try

- Jiffy Pea Soup this easy way. Heat one 1-pound can (2 cups) green peas (with liquid) and 1 cup light cream. (Or if you prefer, use ¾ cup milk and ¼ cup light cream.) Empty into blender. Add ¼ medium onion, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper. Blend till smooth (about 1 minute). Pour from container right into soup bowls. Top with croutons. Makes 3 to 4 servings.
- Bonus sandwich spreads with ham or roast left from Sunday dinner. Use favorite recipe. Put ingredients into blender. Cover. Blend. Use celery stalk to push mixture into blades.
- Speedy buttered bread crumbs. Cut dry or soft bread into small pieces. Place in blender. Add soft butter or margarine (about ½ tablespoon per slice bread). Blend thoroughly.
- One-step Sherbet. Use one 10-ounce package frozen raspberries or one 14-ounce can frozen pineapple. Break up frozen fruit, place in blender. Turn blender on. With rubber spatula, work fruit down slowly until smooth and of sherbet consistency (about 1 minute for raspberries, 3 minutes for pineapple.) Serve immediately. For more solid sherbet, empty into refrigerator tray, freeze till ready to serve. Makes about 3 servings.

MAKE IT A DINNER TO REMEMBER...

Make FRENCH'S Crown o' gold Meat Loaf

Crown o' gold Meat Loaf

1½ cups fine soft bread crumbs
1½ lbs. ground lean chuck beef
4 egg yolks
1½ tsps. salt
2 tbsps. French's Mustard
1½ tbsps. prepared horseradish
3 tbsps. finely diced green pepper
2 tbsps. French's Minced Onion
⅓ cup ketchup

Crown o' gold Topping

4 egg whites
¼ tsp. French's Cream Tartar
4 tbsps. French's Mustard

High . . . Gold . . . and Handsome . . . Here's a brand-new meat loaf idea with a savory, golden topping. Mix bread crumbs with the meat. Combine remaining ingredients. Blend into meat-bread mixture. Pack lightly into a 9-inch casserole and bake in a moderate oven (325°) 30 minutes. To make topping: beat egg whites until foamy; add cream tartar; continue beating until very stiff. Fold in mustard gently. Swirl on hot meat; return to oven; bake 20 to 25 minutes longer or until crown is tipped with brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Friendly warning: Because French's Mustard is made with rare spices, specially grown mustard seeds and finest vinegar, it has a special flavor, texture and color all its own. Don't expect the best results from this recipe with any other mustard.

1 Salad Hearts with In-the-pink Mayonnaise
2 Grapefruit Surprise Squares
3 Chicken-Cranberry Mold
4 Fruited Ribbon Loaf
5 Valentine Ring-around

Up by the nosegay of hearts and bachelors buttons is Chicken-Cranberry Mold (3). It's a perfect luncheon salad any time—to tie in with the Lincoln and Washington birthday season, turn out this red-and-white beauty on a blue plate. The meaty chicken layer is seasoned with mayonnaise and lemon juice. The red topper is a "built-in" cranberry-pineapple relish.

Our "bluebird of happiness" flaps wings about another buffet wonder, our Fruited Ribbon Loaf (4). All three ribbons are made from the same gelatin mixture—cherry or raspberry. Easy! The top layer shows off pretty canned fruits; middle one is fluffy whipped gelatin; base is lemon-spiked. Serve in slices with baked ham next time you plan a company dinner. For the platter trim of intertwined pineapple rings, just cut one slice and loop through another. Pass a bowl of Pineapple Dressing or mayonnaise with crushed pineapple swirled through.

Down by the Sweetheart roses is Valentine Ring-around (5), a luscious combination of cottage cheese with cream cheese, polka dotted with seedless grapes, pecans, and chive snippets. Top salad with Gelatin Heart Cutouts if you don't happen to have an old-fashioned mold with heart design.

Now for the recipes. Each salad is an obliging make-ahead that adds drama to your table. Each is just delicious!

Salad Hearts

Be a bit romantic for Valentine's Day. Other times, freeze this luscious salad in refrigerator trays, then slice—

1 No. 2½ can (3½ cups) fruit cocktail
1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
¼ cup maraschino-cherry syrup
2 tablespoons lemon juice

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1½ cups tiny marshmallows
¼ cup quartered maraschino cherries
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Few drops red food coloring

Drain fruit cocktail, reserving 1 cup syrup. Dissolve gelatin in hot water; add reserved fruit-cocktail syrup, maraschino-cherry syrup, and lemon juice. Chill till partially set. Soften cream cheese; add mayonnaise and beat till smooth. Add to gelatin mixture, mixing well. Stir in fruit cocktail, marshmallows, and cherries. Fold in whipped cream. Tint pink with red food coloring. Pour into individual heart molds.* Freeze several hours or overnight. Unmold atop pineapple rings. Top with Gelatin Heart Cutouts. Makes 12 large or 18 small servings.

*Freeze any extra salad in refrigerator tray.

Gelatin Heart Cutouts

Dissolve one package cherry- or strawberry- or raspberry-flavored gelatin in 2 cups hot water. Pour into shallow baking dish—gelatin should be a little less than ½ inch deep. Chill till firm. Cut out hearts with cooky cutter. To remove the first cutout, slit a piece of gelatin between designs and pull out surrounding scraps; lift the cutout with spatula. Serve as a pleasant touch atop Valentine salads.

In-the-pink Mayonnaise

Whip ½ cup heavy cream; fold in 1 cup mayonnaise. Fold in drop or so of red food coloring or enough frozen strawberries (first thaw, crush, drain) to tint a delicate pink.

Grapefruit Surprise Squares

Refreshing is the word. "Grapefruited" lemon gelatin with a surprise of cream cheese and nuts between layers—

2 1-pound cans (4 cups) grapefruit sections
2 packages lemon-flavored gelatin
• • •
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk
½ cup chopped California walnuts
Maraschino cherries

Drain grapefruit and add enough water to the syrup to make 3½ cups. Heat half of the syrup mixture to boiling; add to gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add remaining syrup mixture; cool. Reserve best grapefruit sections (about half) for top layer; arrange remaining in bottom of 9x9x2-inch pan. Carefully pour half of the gelatin over grapefruit in pan; chill until firm. Soften cream cheese; add milk and nuts. Spread over gelatin layer; chill. Meanwhile chill remaining gelatin till partially set. Arrange reserved grapefruit on top of cheese; garnish with cherries and carefully pour remaining gelatin mixture over top. Chill until set. Cut in squares and serve on greens. Makes 9 to 12 servings.

Chicken-Cranberry Mold

Almost a meal-in-one. Make it the hub of a ladies' luncheon—

Cranberry Layer:

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 1-pound can (2 cups) whole cranberry sauce
1 9-ounce can (1 cup) crushed pineapple
½ cup broken California walnuts
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve over hot water. Add cranberry sauce, pineapple, walnuts, and lemon juice. Pour into 1½-quart mold*; chill till firm. Meanwhile, combine Chicken Layer.

Chicken Layer:

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ cup cold water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt
2 cups diced cooked or canned chicken
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Dissolve over hot water. Blend in mayonnaise, then ½ cup cold water, lemon juice, and salt. Stir in chicken, celery, and parsley. Pour over cranberry layer; chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Top with dollop of mayonnaise and walnut half. Makes 6 to 8 servings. To match picture that shows cranberry layer thinner than chicken one, mold ¾ cup of the cranberry mixture in an individual mold.

*Or use 10x6x1½-inch baking dish. Cut salad in squares, and for red top invert each as you serve.

The conqueror is the one who is able to believe for a quarter of an hour longer than his adversary that he is not conquered.

—Clemenceau

Fruited Ribbon Loaf

Three pretty tones of red—a real show-off salad—

2 packages cherry- or raspberry-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
2 cups cold water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 1-pound can (2 cups) fruits for salad, drained
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add cold water and salt. First layer: Arrange fruits for salad in 9½x5x3-inch loaf pan. Carefully pour 1 cup gelatin mixture over. Chill till firm. Second layer: Add lemon juice to remaining gelatin mixture. Measure 1 cup of this mixture and add lemon peel; chill till partially set; beat with rotary or electric beater till light and fluffy. Pour over fruit layer; chill till firm. Third layer: Chill remaining gelatin till thick; pour over whipped layer. Chill till firm. Unmold on platter; garnish with fruit and endive. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Valentine Ring-around

One of our favorite cheese salads. Come St. Patrick's Day, replace cherry hearts with lime-gelatin shamrocks—

1 12-ounce carton (1½ cups) cream-style cottage cheese
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup seedless green grapes
½ cup broken pecans
2 tablespoons chopped chives or green onions
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mash cheeses together till well blended. Soften gelatin in cold water; dissolve over hot water; add salt. Stir gelatin mixture into cheese mixture. Add grapes, nuts, and chives. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into 5-cup ring mold or individual molds. Chill 4 to 6 hours. Unmold. If you like, top with cherry-flavored Gelatin Heart Cutouts. Garnish with grapes and salad greens. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Tasting-Test Kitchen note: To serve larger groups, double this recipe. Use a 2-quart ring mold.

Kit Kinne, is also a TV home economist. Besides running a busy home on the Bucks County farm, she conducts her own New York business preparing food for TV commercials. Kit commutes to the city only when necessary, does much of her work at home.

The Sigetys have wonderful plans for restoring the whole farmhouse and modernizing each room in the same Early American decor used in the kitchen-family-room wing. Many of the handsome antique furnishings and accessories are heirlooms; the "fill-ins" are antiques picked up right in Bucks County. All the old outer doors that had to be replaced with new exterior doors were saved and used elsewhere in the house.

Look here for inspiration on how to join the old and new in a tasteful and practical way. Simplicity is the secret to this successful and handsome remodeling.

Laundry center is compact, yet offers lots of working space. It's located at one end of the long kitchen—separated from Mrs. Sigety's food-fixing areas. It's no chore to wash a load of clothes any time with the equipment near the center of activity.

The upper cabinets are made of steel but have wooden doors. Note the corner wall cabinets at both ends of the wall. These were used to give more storage for soaps, detergents, starch, and other laundry supplies. Base cabinet at left hides the laundry basket.

The children's hour is a family affair in the Sigety home—now that they have a combined kitchen-family room. Here, little Kinne and sharpshooter Birge join Dad in a before-dinner TV show.

Mrs. Sigety is busy at the spacious marble counter preparing a pie for dessert. Note that the end of peninsula becomes a functional storage spot for the roll-out TV. Doors close it off so you'd never know it was there. Pine used in doors came from the Snell homestead barn, is in character with mellow look of remodeling.

Four-way table-bed

Now there's a dining table, too. Leaving sofa undisturbed, lower section pulls out to make table for six. Light in scale with tapered legs, it doesn't crowd small space.

Now we have two comfortable beds. With bolsters removed, sofa's upper cushion becomes a mattress for table unit. A quick, easy way to accommodate occasional overnight guests.

Here's the secret to the rapid conversion. Shortest legs are for use as a bed; medium height, for coffee table. Tallest legs bring unit to comfortable dining height.

Paneling in random-plank style is 4′ x 8′ Weldwood Walnut V-Plank®. Chair is covered with scuff-proof yellow Weldron® vinyl upholstery fabric.

This walnut paneled room is really two rooms!

This combination den and bedroom gives a warm welcome to family or guest—with Weldwood prefinished walnut paneling. Only $75 for a 12-by-8-foot wall.

Even when space is limited, you can still give the best in the house to your guest in the house. And when he or she leaves, just fold the day bed. Presto! You have a cheerful den.

But Weldwood prefinished paneling is more than just a room-brightener. It's practical—with a finish which resists stains and smears. This genuine wood paneling is triple-sanded, then sealed, toned, filled and twice-lacquered—the same process which is used for fine furniture—is easy to keep clean through the years.

If you're a confirmed "do-it-yourselfer," you'll find it easy to install Weldwood panels. If you're a spectator at heart, ask your Weldwood dealer to suggest a local contractor.

Blender tips to save time and work

▶ Meat loaf: Blend dry bread till crumbs are fine. Using favorite recipe, measure out amount crumbs called for. Return to blender and blend with milk, egg, onion, and seasonings. Add to ground meat (in separate bowl) and mix well. Bake as specified in recipe.

▶ "Grated" cheese for that pizza pie, salad, or casserole in seconds with your blender. And no bruised knuckles either! Add cubes or pieces of cheese (just out of the refrigerator) through insert opening while blades are in motion. (Drop just small amount at a time.) Blend just few seconds. Note: Cheese must be cold or it will pack at bottom of container.

▶ Gravy or white sauce that has become lumpy will be smooth again if you let blender help. Just pour hot mixture in blender and let run about ½ to 1 minute.

▶ Crushed ice can become a daily treat when you use your blender. Drop cracked ice cubes through the lid insert while blades are in motion. To get snowy ice, chill blender container 15 to 20 minutes in freezer before using.

▶ Dips and dunks (great nibble favorites) get "super creamy" in your blender. For quick blending, have cheese at room temperature. Make it a day ahead so flavors blend and ripen. Stop motor occasionally and scrape container sides with rubber spatula.

▶ A new style, Lumpless White Sauce: Break 1 slice white bread (crust trimmed) into blender container, add ¼ cup hot milk. Cover, start blender. Through opening in cover, add 2 additional bread slices (with crusts trimmed and broken in pieces), ¾ cup hot milk, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper. Blend till smooth. If too thick, add little more milk. Sauce will thicken slightly upon setting. Serve with meat, vegetables. Makes about 1 cup.

▶ Tangy Apricot Whip: Soak 1 cup dried apricots in 1¼ cups milk for 3 hours or till tender. Put apricots and milk, ⅓ seeded lemon (peel and all), and ¼ cup sugar in blender. Note: peel lemon if skin is thick. Blend till smooth (about 2 minutes). Beat 3 egg whites and dash salt in bowl or mixer till soft peaks form. Add additional ¼ cup sugar gradually, beating till stiff peaks form. Fold apricot mixture into egg whites. Pile in sherbet glasses, chill. Top with whipped cream. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

▶ Frozen fruit juices may be whizzed to a delicious freshness in your blender. First put frozen concentrate in blender, add water, blend.

▶ Giblet gravy is a snap when you let your blender do the job. Add cooked giblets and small amount broth, blend till of fineness you want. Add to gravy.

▶ Salad dressings of your own concoction and choosing are easy when you let the blender take over. All ingredients join together and become one delicious flavor.

▶ Scrambled eggs and omelets for a crowd are a snap thanks to the blender. A breakfast stand-by, too.

▶ Graham-cracker crumbs are a natural in the blender. Run blender just few seconds so crumbs do not get too fine.

▶ Vichysoisse that's supersmooth is your reward when you put potato soup in blender. Heat 1 can frozen condensed cream of potato soup to thaw. Pour into blender. Add 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup and 1 soup can milk. Blend till smooth. Add 1 cup light cream, blend few more seconds. Cover. Chill well. (If desired, blend again just before serving.) Top each cup with chives. Makes 5 servings.

▶ Shakes and drinks are favorite blender "customers." The children will enjoy whipping up their own. Remember not to overload—do small amount at a time. Dad will go for this Easy Mocha Shake. Add 1 pint chocolate ice cream, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons instant coffee, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg to blender. Blend thoroughly. Top with fluffs of whipped cream, sprinkle with instant coffee.

Salad beauties

Pineapple Dressing

Creamy dress-up for fruit salads—

⅓ cup sugar
4 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
¼ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice, fresh, frozen, or canned

2 beaten eggs

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened

Combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt in saucepan; blend in fruit juices. Cook, stirring constantly, till thick and clear, about 5 to 8 minutes. Slowly stir into eggs. Return to saucepan and cook over low heat, stirring constantly for a minute or till mixture thickens slightly. Let cool 5 minutes. Beat into cream cheese. Chill. If you like, swirl with drained crushed pineapple at serving time. Makes about 2 cups.

Need another carport or garage?

Ranch house could add a carport to garage

More car shelter is gained here with minimum investment. Simple, flat roof extends to form single carport. It's lowered to door and window height, carried around as sheltered route to front door.

The new concrete slab may be continued rearward to form a terrace. Fencing, along side of carport, is carried around to define lot line, add privacy for outdoor living. Additional storage is built in, too.

Garage can turn, expand, still feed to alley

By enlarging alley-facing garage you gain width, but it's still difficult to turn sharply and drive in.

Opening access to this side produces a pleasant blend with house's roof line. Side wall of original single garage is removed and two are combined.

Driveway curves slightly around to back-of-lot alley. Driving in is no problem now. Paving was extended toward house (as long as construction was underway) to form a patio and wheeled-toy area.

For full benefit of back-yard living area, fence to screen patio can run along side lot line and join house where kitchen wing extends.

New double carport can grow up front

Back yard was undisturbed by building this carport forward (setback rules permitting). House gains importance and interest as result. Family gains a pair of new terrace areas (the former carport and area screened from street behind addition).

Flat roof of carport is carried to house, gaining a sheltered car-to-front-door route. Paving which led to former carport is left undisturbed; it becomes parking and turnaround space.

Garage in front expands both living and parking

Alternative to extending the older house's single garage is this building of a complete new garage up front. New roof and siding blend with existing materials. Fence ties old and new together.

The old garage can be absorbed as increased living space. Former door is replaced by sliding glass, with minimum of framing changes. Former driveway paving becomes a terrace, outlined by the fence and sheltered from street by new garage. Curved drive provides guest parking, turnaround.

WHAT THE MILLIONAIRE SAID TO THE BYSTANDER

"How much does it cost to own a yacht like that?" a millionaire sportsman was asked about his 200-foot luxury vessel. His answer was simple: "If you have to think about costs, you shouldn't own one." Now, maybe you have that attitude about a Swept-Wing 58 4-door station wagon. Certainly this "land yacht" costs more than other body styles. And true, there are cheaper wagons on the market. (Also smaller, lighter, less luxurious.) But here is a new way to look at the cost: If you divide the purchase price by the number of times you'll use this wagon over a two-year period, it may prove to be the least expensive car you could buy. Because, you see, you'll use it for everything. It's that great.

Station wagon owners of the world, arise! If you own a non-Chrysler Corporation wagon, you are suffering under the yoke of antiquated design. Do you have to battle an awkward, two-piece tailgate? (Our Swept-Wing 58 has a one-piece tailgate; window lowers into it.) Do the passengers struggle to get in and out of third seat? (Our wagons have rear-facing, rear-entry third seat in Observation Lounge.) Do you worry about exposing capitalist luxuries stored in rear? (We have secret storage compartment that locks.) So quit dreaming about what's going to happen to station wagons "come the revolution." Friend, the Swept-Wing 58 wagon is a revolution. See your Dodge dealer today and get aboard.

Curon® WALL COVERING

From street, it looks like every little house you've ever seen. But who'd guess its space in back characterizes today's best planning.

An addition that made a wrong house right

. . . by giving an ordinary little bungalow a spacious, open living unit

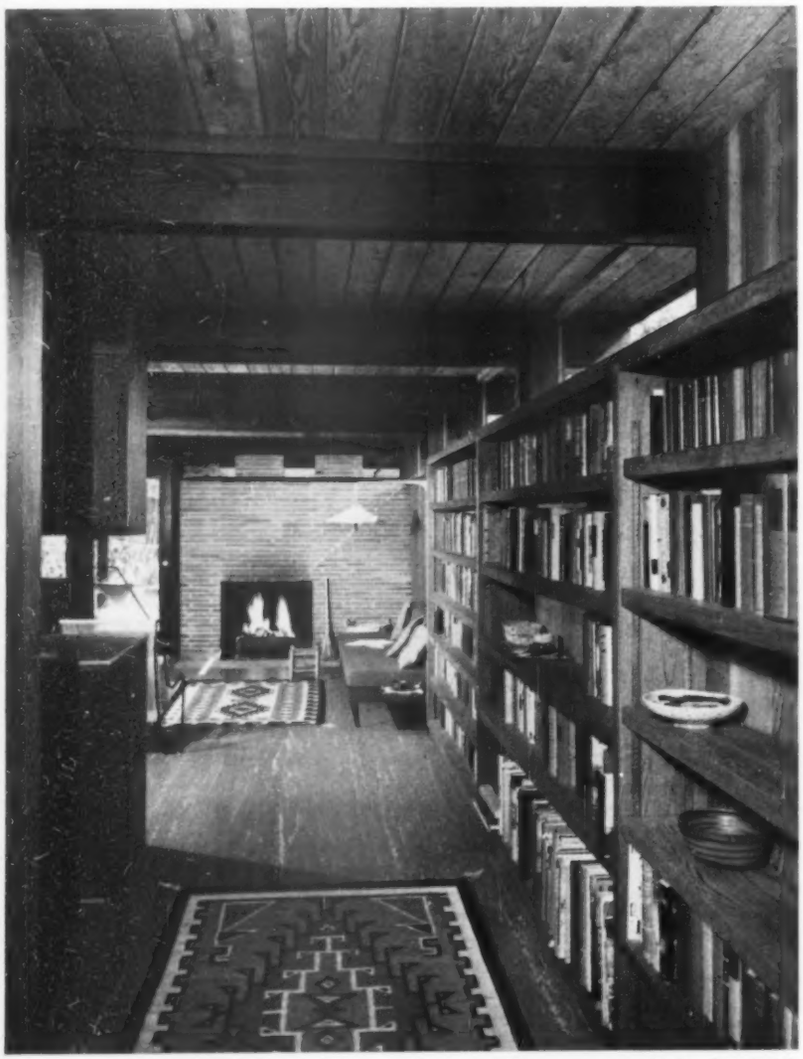
You may be looking for the right house for retirement . . . or you may just want the kind of house that lets you live like you're retired.

The Garland Ethels of Seattle found the wrong house — small, crowded, conventional, demanding upkeep. And they're entertainment-minded people, garden hobbyists. They like space and outdoors. The house they needed was one you build from the basement up!

But Architect Paul Hayden Kirk and Builder Blair Kirk collaborated with the Ethels on another approach. They let the existing house stand and built on toward the back of the lot. Suddenly, very pleasant things happened. The little wrong house became very right indeed with the addition of a spacious, open living unit that included the kitchen, a living-dining room, and a deck terrace.

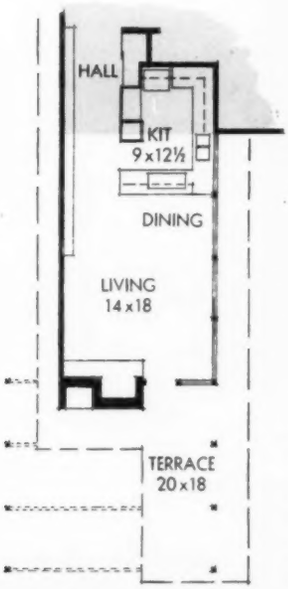


Route from existing house into addition could be conventional hall — but Architect Kirk used space wisely here as elsewhere. Outside wall is lined with bookshelves. Shelves on notched brackets are adjustable. Only high strip windows are used across this west exposure. Colorful Navajo rugs introduce new accents.

Facing kitchen, you can see how easy it is to serve dining area (beside windows). Pass-through lets you set up terrace meals, roll them out on cart to enjoy outdoor dining on deck. Vinyl flooring, natural woods (redwood, fir) make this a true retirement house from upkeep standpoint.

BEFORE. Here's rear of house when Ethels first moved in. From small kitchen and bedroom windows, it offered limited view of outdoors, and only makeshift outdoor living and cooking facilities. House sat awkwardly on high foundation.

AFTER. And here's astonishing transformation with addition that completely changes the style of small hip-roof house. Posts and beams continue beyond enclosed space to create partial cover for deck terrace. Posts support bench along edge. Fireplace is outdoor copy of living room's.

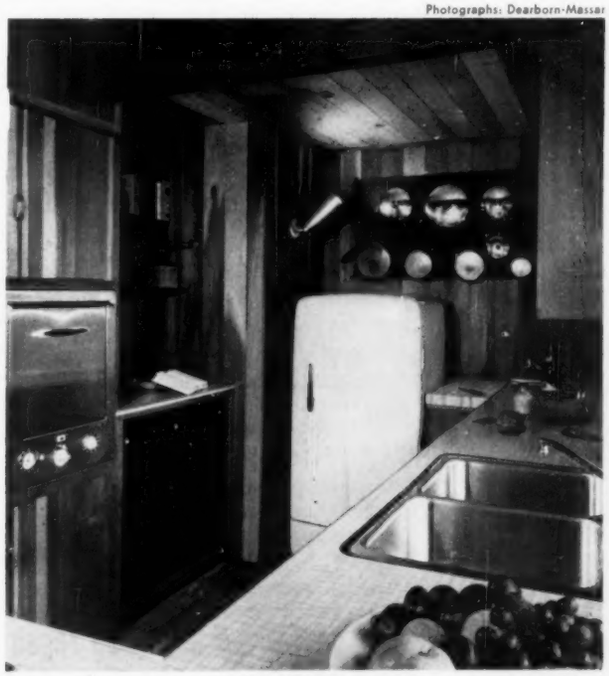


The Ethels' new kitchen, living-dining room, and terrace make up 360-square-foot addition. Shaded area of the plan is part of the original house.

The post-and-beam structural system of addition is based on economical 6-foot module.

Photographs: Dearborn-Massar

Across pass-through and built-in range, Mrs. Ethel can communicate with guests, husband in living room. Kitchen, living room, and terrace work as unit in flow of space that permits large-scale entertaining even in house this small. Fireplace has common foundation with one outdoors, making the dual unit less costly.



Kitchen, part of original house, nearly doubled in size with addition. Walls are newly surfaced with redwood; sink and appliances are new, better arranged than old. Owners planned to stop with remodeling of kitchen until they saw what they could get with more complete addition.

Attaching new roof to masonry wall

To tie into the sides of an existing house or garage, bolt a 2x4 ledger to wall. Rest bottom edge of joists on ledger, 16 inches apart, and toenail to ledger. Cover with wood sheathing and asphalt-impregnated building paper.

Add row of shingles, thick ends at wall, for drainage. Fit flashing into chiseled-out joints and re-apply mortar.

Joining new concrete floor with old

Foundations must extend below frost line in cold climates. In warm climates, reinforced slabs with edges 6 inches thick are sufficient. Form foundation walls first; cast floor inside later. Set bolts around edges for sill plate before concrete hardens.

Insert short reinforcing rods along edges of existing foundation. Tie these to wire mesh in slab. Backfill the excavation for slab.

Joining new and old roofs together

With fascia board removed, nail new rafters to ends of existing rafters. Work roofing under lower edges of existing shingles.

Need another garage or carport?

Simple framing method for new walls

Build new garage wall with 2x4s, 16 inches on center, on the ground or garage floor. Tilt up to position and nail in place. Siding from old garage center wall is reused on new portion.

Minimum dimensions for maneuvering

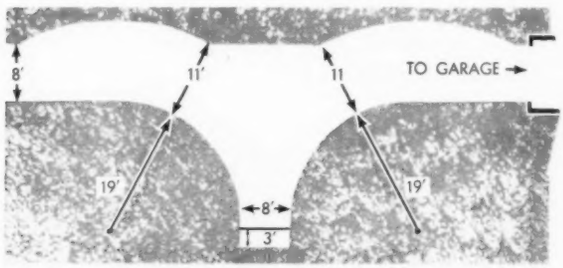
Fifteen-foot width at curb lets you enter without swinging into wrong lane of street. Eight-foot standard width for straight section widens back out for curved portion. Eight-foot expansion and 16-foot straight stretch prepare for 11-foot width necessary for easy turning.



Well designed back-around area avoids excessive turning, long backing to street. Paved area may be incorporated into large terrace. Lay out 19-foot radius with rope or length of garden hose to see if you have enough yard space.

Local building code defines requirements

When planning your addition, first check zoning restrictions. Most residential areas require that all buildings be set back from the front property line a specified distance. If your house is just back of this line, you won't be able to build a garage in front. However, a carport is considered a porch by many building codes, and therefore may be pushed forward as needed.

Check side-yard restrictions too. Minimum width required between your house and side lot line may prevent you from adding another garage or carport width alongside your present one. You'll need a building permit before construction is started.

1001 ways to say almost anything

curtailed the continuing popularity of the Traditional card. One card, a basket of pansies and a verse commencing, "Pansies always stand for thoughts," has been bought by almost 8 million people in the last 17 years. The Modern card has not won over old customers, so much as it has brought into the card shops millions of Americans who had never bought a greeting card before.

The element of sheer fun in card-buying has been vastly increased. Halloween, for example, once offering only routine pumpkins and witches for the children's market, now gives the fun-loving adult a choice of hundreds of cards—one showing a starched and unbending Southern Colonel, mint julep in hand, peering through a dank swamp and announcing, "Boo, Y'All!"

Such cards often come in giant sizes with realistic appendages (a mink tail, for example, that a lady can pin to her jacket lapel) and cost one or two dollars. Price has proved no obstacle to mounting sales. The cards are kept on tables and mantelpieces to be enjoyed by family and friends. "People may come in for a specific card," says the proprietor of New York's largest card shop, "but invariably they stay half an hour, chuckling over every card, buying four or five just for the fun of picking them."

The Modern card, moreover, reflects the increasingly sophisticated tastes of the public. It has passionately explored all the quirks and foibles of the battle between the sexes. "Ours is a strange and wonderful relationship," proclaims one card, showing a hippopotamus sniffing the beak of a tiny chick. "Sable, schmable . . . As long as you're able," advises another in which a fur-bedecked female races breathlessly an arm's length ahead of a pursuing male. The humor is biting, often cynical. "So it's your birthday," says one congratulatory card. "So you expected maybe the plant to shut down."

Psychologists have explained the increasingly important role of the greeting card, both Traditional and Modern, in terms of loneliness of modern society. The cardmakers strive ceaselessly to create a very personal link between sender and receiver. Studies show that we never say we "signed" a card. Instead we say, "I wrote a card today." The card becomes our personal message, our own creation. The major companies, therefore, have almost eliminated cards based on popular figures like L'il Abner and Buck Rogers, whose sales were disappointing. "We simply found that the 'me to you' link was destroyed by the interjection of a third personality between the sender and receiver," explained one executive.

As the tastes of the American public have been raised in recent years by the upsurge of attention to art in the mass magazines, the greeting card industry has created an artistic revolution of its own. Some companies have used the finest artists—Utrillo and Grandma Moses, for example—and even such unique talents as Sir Winston Churchill.

Further proof of this artistic demand is the success of cards put out by the Children's Fund of the United Nations. Featuring such artists as France's Henri Matisse and Raoul Dufy, Switzerland's Hans Erni, and India's Jamini Roy, these cards are bought by 3,400,000 people in the United States and almost another 3 million in the rest of the world—the profits going for drugs and food for undernourished children. The museums themselves have led the trend, New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and Museum of Modern Art selling thousands of card reproductions of their masterpieces each Christmas.

In this highly competitive business, over 250 companies engage in fresh battle every week as their new cards reach the shops and fight for the public's favor. The lifeblood of this battle is the development of new ideas. Card companies watch each other like hawks and steal from each other like good-natured pirates. "If someone develops a two-headed dog that strikes the public's fancy," commented one executive, "there'll be five other companies bringing out two-headed dogs within a month."

Strangely enough, no technique has been devised to predict what type of card will sell best. Public taste varies too much. A few years ago, for example, Christmas ornaments as a card design were among the worst sellers; today they are all the rage. Big companies occasionally run off a limited number of new cards and test-sell them in 9 or 10 key cities, but this is a luxury most companies cannot afford.

Since each card is a virtual gamble, most companies try to hedge their bets by basing 75 percent of their output on themes and ideas (in new forms, of course) that sold best last season. They also work feverishly at staying abreast of popular trends. Religious cards, for instance, have become a major part of the Christmas market in the last few years. Pastel colors are in vogue. The Italian influence has introduced bright-striped clothes and black-and-white tile designs. Such trends are often supplied by experts who act as detectives in the fashion centers of the country.

The major companies employ hundreds of artists and writers who develop from 15 to 25 ideas a week. Within the limits of good taste, they face few taboos. Many cards have honored the humorous aspect of the twenty-ninth and thirty-ninth birthday. But no company has ever produced a card for the fiftieth. At that stage, people don't seem to want to be reminded of their age. Innuendo is allowed free rein with animals and children. The rear view of a frisky puppy, for example, can keynote a card that

How is your husband as a HANGMAN?

HE: So you didn't think I could do it? So I'd be "more apt to hang myself than the WALL-TEX", eh? Well, look!

SHE: Darling, you're wonderful! And so is the kitchen.

HE: Well now, you did pick out the pattern. And—yes, you did do the pasting, and you handed the strips up to me. But I hung 'em, didn't I?

SHE: Yes, dear.

HE: And they're straight, aren't they?

SHE: Yes, dear.

HE: And you can't see any seams, can you?

SHE: No, dear.

HE: And all those plaster cracks have disappeared, haven't they?

SHE: Yes, dear.

HE: And it does look like a professional job, doesn't it?

SHE: Yes, dear.

HE: And who suggested buying WALL-TEX and hanging it ourselves?

SHE: You did, darling—after I gave you the hint. And (lovingly) I consider myself fortunate to have both you and WALL-TEX to live with.

Any husband can be a good "hangman" with WALL-TEX. It's canvas. Won't scratch or tear like paper. There's no mess, no waiting for the job to dry. And being canvas, WALL-TEX is honestly scrubbable. A beautiful new collection of WALL-TEX patterns is on display now at decorating and department stores. See it soon.

says, "I'm a little behind . . . in answering your letter."

"I want my artists to let their imaginations go haywire," says one executive. "The more laughter, the more explosions I hear behind their door, the better their minds are working. If they start going stale, I often set up showings of old films of Charlie Chaplin and W. C. Fields. You'd be surprised how many card ideas come out of ludicrous comedy scenes. Sometimes I tell an artist, 'You should get out of the office. Go down and see a museum, inspect the store windows.' Or we may take a whole group of artists and writers to New York to go to the theatre and fashion shows and expose them to new trends."

From seeing "My Fair Lady" on such a trip to New York last year came the idea of using Cecil Beaton's costume designs as the basis of a Christmas series. From a visit to a New Jersey tapestry plant, one artist developed the idea of tapestried panels on cards. Another artist was inspired by seeing the Japanese theater scene in "Around The World in Eighty Days" to create a new card technique—a sliding panel inside the main card which gives the illusion of a moving panorama.

But most ideas spring from completely irrelevant incidents. When one artist accidentally burned a sketch he was making, with his cigarette, he came up with a brand new Valentine—a card with its corner burned away, showing a flaming torch with the caption, "Still carrying it for you . . ."

After piling up work for days on his frantic secretary, one writer suddenly decided she and all her confreres deserved a special card—an ironic twist on General MacArthur's line, "Old secretaries never die. They just look that way."

A card company executive a few years back, singing carols with his friends on Christmas Eve, noticed how few of his guests knew the words. He immediately designed a box of cards, each with a scene depicting a different carol, each containing the carol's words and music. It became one of his biggest sellers the next year.

But the hungry maw of the greeting card business—one major company alone put out 7,000 designs last year—cannot be fed by staff members alone. The result is that most companies, particularly the smaller ones, buy verses and ideas from outside writers. The average greeting card free-lancer earns from $4,000 to $8,000 yearly. Name writers like Ogden Nash and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale command high prices—topped probably by one prolific writer who used to take time off from his books and articles to make $20,000 for two months' work.

Drawn by such lures, almost every housewife in the country who has had her poetry read at a local literary tea floods the card companies with verses. But since such verses are a far more difficult form than meets the eye, only a handful are accepted.

The public has its greatest impact through the local card shops. Dozens of recent best-sellers, including Valentines for teachers, have come from customer suggestions. "A woman comes into a store," one retailer relates, "and demands a card to be sent to a red-headed niece who has just had her tonsils snatched. The card must say, 'Niece,' must mention tonsils, and must have the specific Me to You. Next week the red-headed niece, now fully recovered, will appear in the store looking for a card, 'To Thank My Aunt Who Remembered Me on the Occasion of My Recent Tonsillectomy.' "

The greeting card business has thus supplied a direct answer to a practical problem, an efficient method of keeping in touch with friends and relatives in an increasingly mobile society, a more attractive means of communication that has finally achieved full social acceptance. No longer do people sit down and suffer over lengthy correspondence. Instead they choose a greeting that says what they have in mind—but in the "come-to-the-point" manner that marks the atomic age.

IN COLD weather, it pays to have appliance motors at room temperature before starting them—or at least warm enough so oil and grease aren't stiff. Less strain that way. Position your refrigerator and freezer where temperature won't go below 40 degrees, unless they're specially equipped. If you store sewing machine or vacuum cleaner in an unheated room or porch, bring it inside a few hours before running, so motor can warm up.

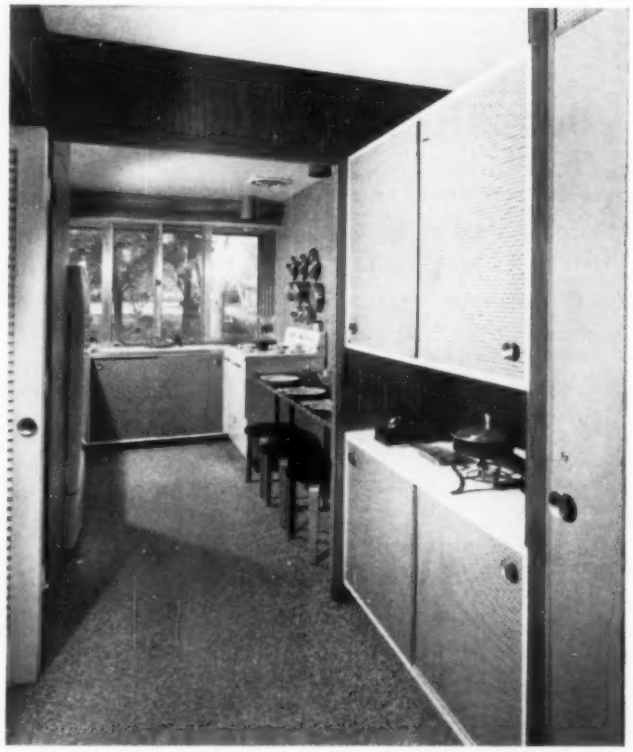
Here's space that will take to a variety of arrangements. Lightweight furniture is easily moved. And even heavy pieces (like architect-designed coffee and dining tables) are portable. Both of these marble-topped tables have casters on legs at one end.

This floor-plan view shows entry at left, partitioned from dining area by "fence"; storage unit at right sets off kitchen.

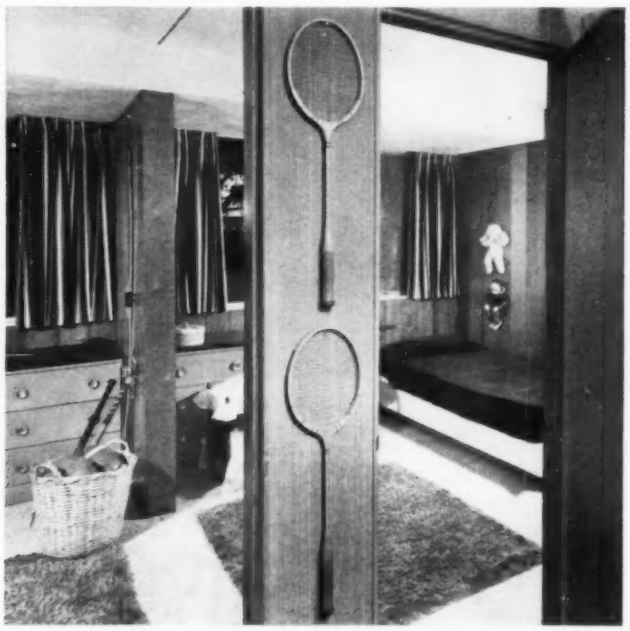


Compact and efficient, kitchen does well with its 12x8 dimensions. Breakfast bar is built-in (just a slab and stools) between range and hall wall. Windows look to privacy of rear yard.

Unit at right is really in hall—and opens to dining area on opposite side. Sliding doors on cabinets are perforated hardboard; kitchen counter tops are black laminated plastic.

Two cabinets, simply framed, are suspended between slim black pipes. Unit sets boundaries of entry hall and living room. Solid partition would rob light, obstruct view of living room and entry. Pandanus-cloth facing, framed in black molding, gives texture.

On living-room side, divider has bookshelves that adjust to any height. Shelves are secured on recessed metal strap hangers.



Children, Michael and Sharon, have separate bedrooms that open as one during the day. Partition slides open on ceiling track to create spacious playroom. And matching bedrooms have matching facilities. Each room has its own door, windows, and closet. Resilient tile floor with shag rugs gives a choice of soft or smooth surface.

It pays to plan your home around the windows

They're master keys to your home's livability—and resale value. In today's homes, as much as 60% to 70% of your walls may be windows. Nothing so affects your home's livability, beauty and resale value. In fact, an extra ½ of 1% invested now to make sure you have good windows can well repay you 20 times over if you ever have to sell. So it pays to plan right ... planning your home around its windows.

2 RIGHTS AND WRONGS OF WINDOW PLANNING

WRONG Never put in fixed picture-windows without adjacent ventilating windows, too, unless your home is to be 100% air conditioned. Even then, ventilating windows are wise because you'll often want to open your home to fresh outdoor breezes—and save on air conditoning at the same time.

RIGHT Ventilating windows above, below or at sides of fixed windows let in the cooling breezes. Shown: versatile Andersen Flexivents which can be used as awning, hopper or casement windows. All Andersen Windows are precision made to open easily, yet close tightly. No wasted air conditioning!

WRONG Why strain your back? Never locate a conventional up-and-down opening window (type known as "double hung") across a kitchen sink or counter—or where you'll have to reach over heavy furniture to raise or close it.

RIGHT Outswinging windows are ideal for such places. Andersen Casement, Flexivent® or Beauty-Line* Windows open at a touch; yet close weathertight to seal out rain, dust or drafts, saving both your back and your nerves.

Patent Pending*

It's easy to be right with a little planning. And you're always right with Andersen Windows. Be sure to send coupon (opposite page) for more helpful window ideas. Plan your windows for extra livability and be happy!

Living room, kitchen, and bedroom line up across this side. Terraces off living room and bedroom are paved in brick.

Entry court is shielded on three sides: left, by house; right, by storage rooms and carport; center (streetside), by white board fence. Terrace is rain or shine outdoor room. Walk between house and carport is covered by 10-foot wide roof. Sun's hottest here, so covering is more for its cooling shade than just for rain protection.

The new freeways

as one of the greatest economic influences of this century," predicts John A. Volpe, the interim United States highway administrator.

Gerald W. Collins, manager, Transportation and Communications Department, United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., says: "There is hardly a city, village, or mile of highway that will not be involved. Present traffic patterns will be altered; new areas will be opened for business; motor vehicle transportation in all forms will assume greater utility, convenience, and safety."

The sheer immensity of this program is staggering. The St. Lawrence Seaway project is big, but the $51 billion going into federal highways is enough to build 50 Seaways. Change that $51 billion into thousand dollar bills, stack the money in your back yard, and you would have 28 piles each as high as the Empire State Building.

But it is what you are getting for that money that really counts.

Allowing for variations to meet local conditions, the new Interstate Highway System will consist of 4 or more traffic lanes, each at least 12 feet wide. In the country, median strips at least 36 feet wide will separate opposing traffic lanes. Shoulders will be about 10 feet wide along borders of the road. Grade separations will be used for crossroads, eliminating dangerous intersections, stop lights, and arterial signs.

You can get an idea of what this new network will be like by driving on the New York Thruway, the Ohio Turnpike, or any of the other new superhighways that already are in operation. But the new network will consist of freeways, not toll roads.

It will link 42 of the 48 state capitals, and 90 percent of all cities with a population of 50,000 or over.

Such a network will revolutionize America.

Industrial and business expansions will follow superhighways. Traffic congestion in major cities will be alleviated. Decentralization of industry will be stimulated, providing new life for many a small community that may be close to a major highway on the new network.

Residential patterns will change. Today's suburbs around metropolitan centers will foster a host of new "sub-suburbs" where today there are only farms and fields. Commuting habits in metropolitan centers will change, for it will be just as easy to commute 50 miles as it now is to commute 15.

Do you own a home near one of those projected highway routes? If so, you may expect the value of your property to rise. Land values along freeways and expressways often increase as much as 300 to 400 percent, sometimes much more.

Real estate values in southeast Florida started climbing as soon as that state's Sunshine State Parkway was launched. Near Fort Pierce a one-acre site recently sold for $20,000, five times its pre-highway value.

Private land near the Arroyo Seco Freeway in California increased 3 to 12 times in value once that new highway was constructed. Land adjacent to the Gulf Freeway in Houston, Texas, which was valued at 6 to 8 cents a square foot in 1945, prior to the highway, now is valued at over 60 cents a square foot.

A location anywhere near a superhighway is virtually certain to increase the value of your property.

Moreover, you will feel other economic benefits. A rash of industrial plant construction usually follows completion of new superhighways. That has been indicated in every place where such highways have been constructed, and there is no reason for believing the pattern will change.

After construction of a new circumferential superhighway around Metropolitan Boston, $150 million worth of new industrial plants were built along the route. Since completion of the New York Thruway, even more factories and industrial plants located adjacent to it.

Such building means more job opportunities for you, for your children.

That new highway network, of course, will make it easier to get to and from your job, especially if it is in a metropolitan center.

Traffic congestion understandably is worst in urban centers. So improvement of highways in and around cities will draw the attention of roadway planners. Present plans call for over half of the interstate spending to be concentrated in urban areas, a factor that should go a long way toward wiping out bottlenecks now throttling major cities.

"A comprehensive freeway in a metropolitan area can reduce travel time of downtown workers by 66 hours a year," reports the Automotive Safety Foundation, Washington, D.C.

"An urban expressway can carry twice as much traffic as a surface street of comparable width, and carry it twice as fast, twice as economically, and three times as safely," says an automobile company official.

Those modern new roads promise to reduce substantially the traffic accident toll. Bringing the 41,000 mile Interstate System up to adequate standards is expected to save 3,500 lives a year. Improvements in thousands of miles of primary and secondary roads should result in comparable savings.

"Federal standards governing the construction of routes on the Interstate System provide for every built-in safety feature," says C. B. Curtiss, commissioner, U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Traffic will flow into and around large cities over safe, divided highways of 4 to 8 lanes, protected by carefully planned access. Adequate lighting will illuminate key sections. Design of highways will provide for at least 70 miles per hour in flat country, 60 in rolling country, 50 in mountainous and urban areas.

Limited access is a key point in safety of modern highways. Provisions of the new highway program stipulate that no access road can be built into the Interstate System without authorization. This means that filling stations, restaurants, drive-in theaters, and other roadside businesses can't locate directly on the highway where in-and-out traffic would constitute a traffic hazard. Such businesses will have to settle along side roads or crossroads reached via safe, modern interchanges.

"We have convincing evidence of the superior safety of areas with access control," says Charles W. Prisk, president, Institute of Traffic Engineers.

Analyzing results of studies, he says: "Gross rates show that where the highway had full access control, accidents are averaging 171 per 100 million vehicle miles. Where partial control is provided, the rate is 240 per 100 million vehicle miles. With no access control, the rate is 408."

So it is safe to assume that less than half as many accidents will occur on freeways as on comparable conventional highways, and this is a conservative estimate. A study of traffic on Detroit's new expressways shows these roads, on a traffic volume basis, are 10 times as safe as the city's major surface streets.

Such safety not only reduces your chances of ending up as an accident statistic; it may mean money in the bank for you.

"If the cost of accidents nationally ($4.7 billion in 1955) could be cut in half, a saving of $38 per vehicle could be effected," says the Automotive Safety Foundation.

Even if you never have an accident, greater highway safety could put money into your pocket through lower insurance rates.

Additional savings also may be anticipated through reduced operating costs over those new highways. It is estimated that driving on these new improved roads will save you at least one cent a mile in fuel, oil, tire, and brake costs.

Since the average passenger car rolls up 9,400 miles a year, the annual savings would be $94 per auto. Actually, savings could be greater. A study of expressways in Detroit by the Michigan State Highway Department, the Wayne County Road Commission, and the City of Detroit showed that motorists averaged 5.18 cents a mile over expressways versus 8.9 cents per mile over comparable city streets.

Treasures from old knobs and handles!

Members of your clan will delight in these unusual keepsakes. They're easily made from family mementos or antique-store "finds"

Wheel composed of umbrella and cane handles makes handsome wall ornament for a collector. A red-velvet-covered board is a rich background for the metal. Hub of the wheel is curtain hold-back you can get at department stores; the border is jeweler's chain. Handles are fastened with fine copper wire strung through board.

Here are some of the useful gifts you can make from keepsake or antique-store handles. These were all umbrella handles; but we found that early vintage shaving-brush handles work equally well. Directions for attaching them are on page 164.

By Helen Stark and Kay Russell

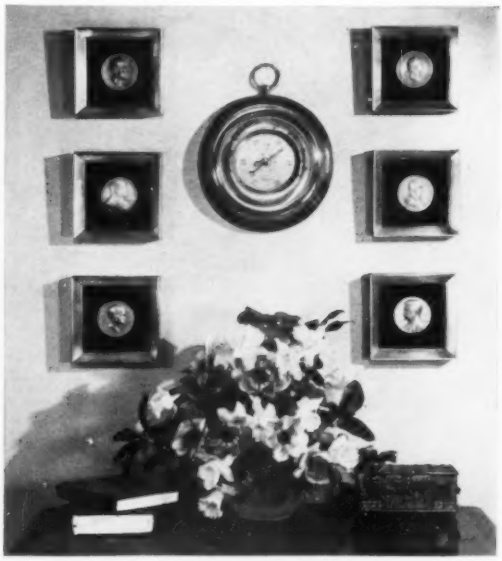
Photographs: Howland. Owner-designer: Frederic Schneller

Decorative handles paired with knife blades make especially handsome serving pieces. The average blade will fit most handles.

You may even decide to use a letter opener or a tea strainer—whatever the recipient of your gift will find most useful. The simple wood plate plays up subtle beauty of metal, is a good companion-gift idea.

Antique doorknobs often have sentimental value, a personality all their own. This brass knob was mounted as a paperweight. It complements other accessories.

The handsome wall plaque consists of a bronze medallion attached to a ready-made wooden plaque from a department store. For added elegance, the latticework is backed with polished-brass sheeting. The sheeting was given an "antique" look with lacquer.



Mount a group of medallions for a highly decorative gift. Someone who enjoys history would like these profiles of presidents. Military decorations, old coins, or athletic awards are other suggestions.

Choose a matting and frame that will dramatize the medals. These are mounted on black velvet. Simple frames are best for small items.

Treasures from old knobs and handles

Doorknobs make unusual paperweights

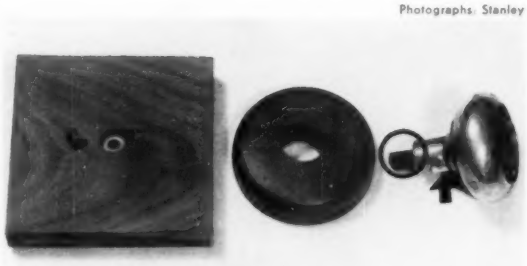
Two blocks of ¾-inch-thick walnut stock (or any cabinet wood) and an old brass doorknob are all you need for the paperweight on page 160.

Turn one block round on your power saw or lathe (or with a plane and rasp); the other is finished square. You will need a rasp and sandpaper to round top smooth.

Photographs: Stanley



Assembly of paperweight: Base of knob fits in round. Locking screw is filed flush for best fit. (See arrow.) Insert pin (circle) will lock the completed unit together.

Counterbore bottom of square block to accept washer and head of locking screw. Screw turns in threaded insert pin. Varnish or lacquer wood block. Glue felt to bottom

Medallion wall plaques are simple to make

To make plaque, start with a ready-made picture frame. Discard glass. Use backing of ⅛- or ¼-inch hardboard.

Choose fairly heavy paper for mat surface. Cut hole in center of mat slightly smaller than medallion you want to mount. Stick mat directly to rough side of hardboard with all-purpose adhesive.

Here's the finished plaque. A couple of daubs of plastic aluminum on back of the medallion fastens it to the hardboard. It was weighted until the adhesive set.

You may wish to repaint the frame or give it antique look by rubbing on some gilt.

How to make accessories with metal handles

With an old, metal-handled shaving brush and a few standard hand tools, you can quickly make a handsome letter opener or serving pieces like ones you see pictured on page 160. Follow same process for umbrella or cane handles.

First remove wooden insert that keeps bristles wedged tight in handle. Give it a twist to break it free.

If your brush does't have this plug, try clamping the bristles in a vise and pulling them free with a sharp, twisting jerk. Or use pliers at the base of the bristles.

Blade is medium size kitchen paring knife. With hammer and punch, you can tap rivets through so they can be readily pulled with pliers.

Do this by bridging knife handle across slightly opened jaws of vise so hammer blows won't bend blade.

Before inserting blade assembly in handle, clamp the blade in round of cabinet wood and fasten with small flathead screws. Countersink them.

Use aluminum tubing for sleeve. Bevel edges slightly with a file.

By tapping sleeve ¼-inch or so past end of round, you can fill recess with plastic aluminum.

Water-mixed putty is used to hold knife firmly in handle. Make it the consistency of sour cream (for easy filling). When handle is filled, tap it lightly in the palm of your hand to tamp mixture solid; you may have to add more putty.

When you're finished, this is what your knife will look like.

Polish the aluminum tubing with emery cloth; file the plastic metal smooth with a file, and polish it, too.

The plastic aluminum gives the "sleeve" a solid metal appearance.

The new freeways

A study by the Automobile Club of Southern California indicated a motorist can drive on Los Angeles' expressways for 4.021 cents a mile as compared with 8.215 cents per mile over regular city streets.

"All across the country gasoline consumption soars as traffic stops and starts, speeds and slows down. Maintenance costs rise sky-high. Clutches, brakes, and tires must be replaced all too frequently. A study of freeway sections in 12 states showed that the savings in vehicle operating expenses balances out the cost of these long-lasting freeways in less than 10 years' time," says Mr. Volpe.

Along with such dollars-and-cents savings, you also will draw large dividends in terms of increased convenience and driving comfort. The Los Angeles study showed that in driving 133.3 miles over expressways no stops were made. Taking the same general route over surface streets required 298 stops.

Most motorists will agree that such stop-and-start driving is hard on the nerves.

Moreover, this study showed that the freeway route was covered in 165 minutes versus 380 minutes over surface streets, at a speed of 48.5 miles per hour on freeways versus 19.5 miles an hour on streets. This certainly illustrates that you may expect less driver fatigue when traveling over superhighways.

Think of what this means when translated into time savings when vacationing. You will be able to cover the same distance in at least half the time when on an expressway. Time now spent behind the wheel of your auto may be spent on a lake holding a fishing pole, or on a golf course with friends.

Of course, you may prefer to spend the same amount of time on the highway, covering much more ground. If so, you will find that new vacation doors will open for you. Where now your vacation orbit may be confined to a 1,000 mile radius, you will be able to extend it to over 2,000 miles.

Eighty-five percent of the vacation travel in the United States now is done via automobile. That improved network of highways will afford more pleasurable motoring and will provide readier access to recreational areas.

Weekending habits will change, too. That hidden lake you now can visit only on a three-day holiday weekend will come within the range of a two-day weekend. A jaunt to a nearby metropolitan center for Saturday shopping or into the country for a picnic no longer will have those traffic congestion horrors. Visiting cross-town or next-town friends via expressway may be as easy as driving around the block is today.

New highways will have indirect benefits for you, too. Modern highways are making possible introduction of those dream automobiles that were exhibited at auto shows last year and the year before. Many of these dream cars are designed for stoplight-free driving, as well as for rolling over conventional highways.

Now, with that new network of Interstate highways assured, those dream cars are being brought from the laboratories to dealers' showrooms. The current record-breaking growth of automobile ownership promises to continue at an even faster clip.

Soon the two-car family may be as common as today's one car family. Auto company executives predict that future garages will hold two automobiles—one a sleek, low, long-distance car built for zooming over those superhighways; and the second a smaller, utility car for shopping and short-range driving.

These are only a few of the more positive benefits that will result from the new network of highways being pushed across the heart land of America. When completed, that network will stand as a monument to American ingenuity and industry, promoting the welfare and comfort of you and your children.

Nothing in life is so exhilarating as to be shot at without result.

—Sir Winston Churchill

Proper nutrition is a necessity

Anatomically, parakeets and chicks have much in common, so baby chick starter has proved an ideal parakeet food. It has a good balance of carbohydrates, proteins, fats, minerals, and vitamins, and can be obtained as ground meal or in small pellets. Your bird also likes small bits of fresh greens.

Photographs: Harriet Arnold

Prevent extremes in temperature

Unusual heat is a parakeet's worst enemy. He suffers when the temperature rises above 85 degrees, and during hot weather he will be more comfortable in the basement or in an air conditioned room. Temperatures under 60 degrees chill him, so in winter it is best to put a cover over his cage at night.

By Dr. Wayne H. Riser

How to keep your bird well groomed

Parakeets normally take care of themselves, but they can't manicure their own nails. Hold the bird in your left hand so his head is between your thumb and forefinger. Use scissors for trimming. If you should cut too short, bleeding can be stopped with astringent powder or a styptic pencil.

Making your friend feel at home

You can win a parakeet's confidence by speaking quietly and avoiding sudden movements. If you offer your finger as a perch, the bird will soon accept it, showing that he's ready to learn how to talk. A young bird is the best pupil, and he learns by having simple words repeated over and over.

Wattage reduced—compliments of "Skimpy Wiring"

Here's a mark-down that's no bargain! Skimpy Wiring—symbol of weak, undersized wires and inadequate circuits—can reduce the wattage of your light bulbs by as much as 25%. You pay for light you never get . . . light your family needs to read and see by.

To find out if your home is one of many victimized by Skimpy Wiring, call your electrical contractor or power company. Ask about changing to full HOUSEPOWER with copper wiring. It can cost less than you think!

Get FREE Booklet—"The ABC of Home Wiring." Write Kennecott Copper Corporation, 161 East 42nd Street, Dept. B28, Box 167, New York 46, N. Y.

If pliers "slip" or "bind," open the handles to the binding point.

Then squirt a couple of drops of oil on the tiny star points of the broach. Position pliers on a block and tap the loose star with the rounded head of a small or medium-size ballpeen hammer.

Repeat this treatment if necessary, but tap, don't pound.

Slip-joint pliers often become loose and slip because the nut that locks the handles together twists off.

Tighten this nut. Then test the pliers so they open and close smoothly. A sharp rap with a hammer and center punch burrs the threads in front of the nut so it won't work loose again. Always use a wrench to turn nuts.

To rematch bent jaws of long-nose pliers, insert a piece of 1/16-inch-thick steel at midpoint between jaws. (A mending plate will work here.)

With a hammer, lightly tap one jaw at a time, working about ½-inch from each jaw tip. Grip the steel tightly in the jaws, and work on a solid surface like a bucking block.

Broken noses of long-nose pliers usually can be ground square again.

Use a grinding wheel, dipping the pliers in water from time to time to prevent overheating and burning.

Check the tip frequently, too, to make sure you're grinding it square.

Avoid dropping pliers on hard surfaces; keep away from extreme heat.

Hang up your pliers when you're through working with them. Although they're made of metal, cutting and holding edges can be bruised and broken if tossed in boxes and drawers with other tools. Rust is another problem that a rack helps solve. Locate it in a dry spot.

Have your PLIERS lost their grip?

You can put them back into service with one of these quick cures for— • Rust • Loose or tight joints • Damaged and broken noses • Dull cutting and holding edges

Add these pages to your HANDYMAN'S BOOK

File under Hand tools

To prevent rust, give pliers that are not "plated" a good buffing with an oily rag after use. Or coat them with a thin film of regular paste wax. A drop of oil from time to time on joints keeps them working.

To remove rust, soak pliers a couple of days in kerosene. Then scrape off loosened rust particles with a putty knife.

Steel wool helps buff metal shiny again; drop or two of penetrating oil loosens joints. Work handles back and forth to free them.

For tight rivets, lay pliers flat over hole in steel block or across slightly opened jaws of a vise. Keep broach side down; smack rivet squarely with hammer. Repeat if needed.

For loose rivets, position pliers flat on steel block or across the closed jaws of your vise.

Be sure broach side (above) is down. With hammer, tap just half of rivet. Hit it squarely.

Then give the pliers a try. If they are still loose, repeat this trick until they're tight.

Check cutting edges by holding the cutters to the light. If light comes through, the edges are dull or joint is faulty. Examine joint before you attempt to sharpen the edges.

A minor adjustment on the joint may bring the cutters tightly together.

When you use pliers to grip hard steel, be sure to cushion the jaws.

To prepare edges for sharpening, first run medium-fine triangular stone horizontally across the cutting edges.

For precision job, lock handles in your vise. Do one edge at a time, checking it frequently against light.

Edges should meet perfectly before you attempt to sharpen them. This operation removes all nicks and burrs.

Sharpen edges of side cutters by running stone along outside bevel. Angle must be maintained throughout process.

Keep oil on the stone; check edges against a light as you go.

On diagonal cutters, sharpen inside bevel. Touch up opposite side so it has slightly rounded edge. It should still feel sharp to the touch.

Jaws won't grip wire or metal properly if cross-checking is nicked, burred, or dull. Renew it by working a "checking" file across the jaws. Keep the file in the same tiny "grooves."

If you don't own a checking file, (they're available at most hardware stores) you can touch up the grooves with a small triangular file.

Benches you can build

HOW ARE YOU FIXED for benches? Did you haul kitchen chairs outside pretty regularly last barbecue season? If you're handy with a hammer, you can stop carrying the chairs. Two of the seats shown here also function as serving tables—so you can save the card table for cards. There's still plenty of time before summer to build a full set of outdoor furniture

Sturdy but graceful enough to use in a game room over winter. Aluminum back is set in dado the thickness of a saw kerf.

Fasten back to seat with two metal straps, 2x¼, 30 inches long. Bend to 95-degree angle 17 inches from one end. Fasten straps to bottoms of the 1x4 hardwood braces, on the outside edge so there's also room for fastening flanges.

Angle back legs by placing shims cut from 2x4 between the pipe flanges and braces. Suggested length: 36 to 38 inches.

Photographs: Stanley

A real big one, but easy to build. Glue and dowel miter joints of the 12x36-inch rectangular "legs."

To assemble, first attach 7-foot brace to the leg units. Allow a 1-inch overhang on sides and 6 inches on the ends for the 8-foot 2x6s which form top. Redwood recommended.

This bench is almost identical to one at top of page. The dimensions are the same, only materials are different.

Overlap ends 4 inches, front 1 inch. Glue and dowel mitered joints. Fasten back and seat with countersunk screws. Flat button casters recommended.

← To make frame, first cut units of right length from 2x2s. Then taper each to 1⅜ inches at one end before mitering.

To determine miter angles, place members on flat surface in proper position. Mark from intersections to corners.

READ THESE FACTS... IMPROVE YOUR HOME... WIN WONDERFUL PRIZES

Today, 4 out of 5 homes suffer from low HOUSEPOWER (not enough electrical wiring, outlets, and switches). Look at the cartoon. This home is obviously one of the 4. If the man can find an outlet to plug that TV cord into, he's certainly going to see one or more of the symptoms of low HOUSEPOWER—if, indeed, he doesn't blow a fuse and break his neck tripping over one of those extension cords. His TV picture will probably shrink and wiggle when that coffeemaker starts; the lights may dim. The coffeemaker will be slow heating up. And no wonder the Mrs. looks bewildered: that snaky maze of wires is enough to confuse anybody. "Octopus plugs" are a sure sign of low HOUSEPOWER.

It'd be so easy for them to improve their home with full HOUSEPOWER. All they'd have to do is call their electrical contractor or electric company for a "HOUSEPOWER Rating." If the rating indicates that additional wiring is needed, the electrical contractor can do the job quickly, neatly, economically. And full HOUSEPOWER will increase the value of their home.

Benches you can build

Use this one as a bench or as outside coffee table. You can build it with less than one sheet of plywood. Exterior grade, ⅝ inch, is preferred. Apply primer before assembling.

When you mark the plywood sheet for cutting, be sure that the top piece has its surface grain running lengthwise. Direction of grain for other pieces isn't important. Assemble with flathead screws. Finish with at least two coats of paint.

Hassock, seat, or footrest — whatever you call it you'll use it a lot all summer.

First cut four sides, 12x18 inches, from exterior plywood. Assemble with 1x2 cleats around inside, both top and bottom. Fasten 18x18-inch top with hinges to interior cleat.

You'll save time by painting the box before you add the trim of contrasting color.

Dead top: Protect new shoots appearing at base of young tree if tree's top has died back. Cut off dead top, use remainder of trunk as a support for new growth.

Double leader: Remove one side to prevent weak crotch and avoid damage from splitting. Leave stronger and more upright branch intact. Do this when tree is still young.

Ladder limbs: Check tree for limbs growing close and parallel to each other. Generally, the higher one should be removed to provide more light for the one remaining.

High head: Give grass more light and air; make mowing chores easier by removing tree's lower limbs. If tree has many low limbs, remove only a few each pruning season.

Cut along dotted lines

How and why to PRUNE TREES

SAWING OFF A DEAD LIMB is like shortening a table leg. You can even use the same saw. But when you start cutting living branches, the tree responds in a way a table can't. It starts to heal itself, covering the cuts with new bark and rechanneling the flow of nutrients around the wound. The tree will even help you correct pruning mistakes. But you won't make many if you follow the suggestions here

First-here's what your saw cuts into

A stem is a wooden cylinder surrounded by a very thin layer of growing cells protected by bark. The sapwood carries water and nutrients up to the leaves; the phloem carries leaf-produced food back to other parts of plant. If bark is broken, the cambium won't survive and the entire stem is subject to decay.

Add these pages to your GARDEN BOOK

File with Maintenance

No matter what type of cut you are going to make, there are basic pruning rules which can help you do it right. Always make clean, neat cuts. Don't shread or tear the bark. Don't leave stubs—always cut flush to the main branch or trunk when removing limbs.

Knowing the basic reasons for pruning will help you, too. Pruning trains trees to desired shape; it helps repair damage caused by storms; it rids trees of dead wood; it removes view-obstructing limbs and limbs that make mowing jobs difficult; and it adds aesthetic values.

Corrective pruning

Water sprouts: Cut off these long, supple twigs before they begin to crowd the major limbs.

If desired, you can fill gaps in tree's shape by allowing one or two sprouts to develop.

Photographs: Stanley

Suckers: Remove suckers from base of tree. They're unsightly and make mowing harder.

Dig right down to where they originate, or you'll have to do this job several times a year.

PUSH OUT

When your stint with the saw is finished, remember that you've left wounds on the tree. These should be treated to speed healing and prevent rot.

Any wound two inches or more across should receive this added care. Failure to provide it could mean the difference between a sound tree and a dead one.

First cut the wound into an elliptical shape, then cover its entire face with a commercial tree-wound preparation. You can buy these at any nursery or garden supply center. Details of wound care are shown on this page.

One last word on safety: Always keep both feet on the ground if you have to remove a limb over 4 inches in diameter. If large limbs are higher than you can reach from the ground, get help from a professional tree surgeon.

Treatment of wounds

Dead stub: Correct old pruning errors as you work. Remove stubs by sawing them flush with trunk or main branch. If left on the tree, stub provides entry for decay.

New wounds: Speed healing of new wounds and make them neater, too, by cutting them into an elliptical shape. Use a sharp knife, make cut through the bark only.

Old wounds: Repaint improperly sealed old wounds where you find signs of cracking or rot. Scrape out dead and decayed wood first, then paint over entire surface of wound.

Neglect: Get professional help when you see trouble like this. Mushrooms, rotted bark, and cored heartwood mean internal damage: Work for a tree surgeon — not you.

Gardens of the South

Not far from the new national seashore park on the Outer Banks is this Elizabethan Garden. A project of the Garden Club of North Carolina, it commemorates the old gardens left behind when the first Englishmen saw these shores.

Virginia is famous for its lovely gardens. In downtown Richmond is an island in a drab industrial district—this Edgar Allen Poe shrine. The pretty, quiet garden has old boxwood trees and gay tulips piercing neat ivy beds.

Brookgreen Gardens, on Route 17 south of Myrtle Beach in South Carolina, has a fabulous display of outdoor sculpture. A wildlife refuge, it also has a zoo, children's playground, and picnic area to delight family groups.

Plain dirt gardener®

By Harry R. O'Brien

Feb. 1 Yesterday I heard a cardinal trying out his spring song. This morning I heard the cheerful tune of a titmouse. Maggie remarked that the evenings stay light a lot longer.

Toward evening, she hurried me out to burn trash in our new incinerator. Then I played hookey and looked around our back premises.

There were my mums, which I had dug and heeled in on top of the ground in the coldframe. They are all green and thriving. The danger time for them is ahead, so I just put a bit of straw over them, as a sort of umbrella.

Feb. 2 All the snow in the whole community melted away—except on our back walk. So Maggie chased me out to scrape it off. I scraped a bit—then scattered five pounds of salt to melt the rest.

I also took a little trip around to see if I could spy any tips of crocus, narcissus, or tulips, peering above ground. Nary a one did I find.

Feb. 4 "How did you get your shoes so muddy?" Maggie asked as I came home from the office a bit late tonight.

"I did it buying a shade tree," says I.

Maybe it was never disclosed but one of our big elm trees died last year and I had to have it taken out. Today, on the way home, I stopped at a nursery to buy another tree. It was muddy as I tromped around, looking at larger sized trees, already dug, with roots balled and burlapped.

I ended up by selecting a sugar maple about 20 feet high. It is not so big as I'd like to have, but I'm part Scotch. I wanted a red maple, but that would cost more. We do not have a sugar maple, anyhow. Mebbe when it gets big enough, we can make our own maple syrup.

Feb. 5 Snowing tonight and after I put out feed for the birds, I counted 27 cardinals at one time feeding around our place. Tonight I sat in my easy chair and dreamed. I pored over the Auto Club Directory of Accommodations for down South. They seem a long way off tonight, in the snow.

Feb. 7 Weather warm, snow all gone, ground thawed out, everything muddy—and along came a truck, crew of men, and my new shade tree on a trailer. They planted that tree, but what happened to my lawn was a-plenty.

Actually, they did a lot besides provide me with a new tree. They dug a proper hole, mixed plant food and peat with the soil they put back in, and watered it well. Then they wrapped the trunk to protect it against borers, and installed guy wires to hold it steady until it is firmly anchored by its own roots.

Feb. 8 Oh happy day. I heard a

"When is that thing going to bloom?" asked David, at breakfast. That thing is Maggie's new hybrid amaryllis, now sitting on the tea wagon.

bluejay practicing its spring notes, quite different from its other harsh tune.

Feb. 11 Maggie and I drove over to Donald's with a valentine for Janet: a box of candy. Found the whole family sick with the flu or something, except Gary. Maggie's valentine was a crocus bowl that I gave her.

When we came back home, we brought Gary along, for a visit. This meant that Maggie was a busy grandmother from then until Gary was tucked into bed.

Feb. 15 "When is that thing going to bloom?" asked David, at breakfast, as Gary, our guest, and Maggie and I ate our pancakes and bacon.

That thing is Maggie's hybrid

David found the crocuses beginning to show, just above the ground, on the south side of the house.

amaryllis, sitting on the tea wagon by the south dining-room window. By now, it has sent up two bloom stalks nearly 24 inches high.

Beside it stands Maggie's bowl of purple crocus in bloom. In the living room, the Christmas azalea is still blooming away. There is nothing like some flowers to keep up one's spirits these winter days.

Feb. 16 "Is it time to sow grass seed on the lawn today?" asked a voice over the phone. "My husband brought some home and I wonder if we should put it on right away."

"Not today," says I. "The wind is blowing like a gale. It would blow half of the seed away. Better wait until about the end of the month or early March. The old saying is scatter it on the last snow. Anyhow, put it on while the lawn is still full of frost cracks and just before spring rains."

Feb. 18 Buds are coming on the top of Maggie's amaryllis. The bloom stalks are so tall, they keep bending back and forth. Maggie vows they are knock-kneed.

Feb. 20 Off this afternoon on a business trip, and Maggie went along for the ride. Her main worry was that her amaryllis would bloom while she was gone.

My worry was to impress David sufficiently so that he would feed

Handles for Glass, yet!

Unless in the glass business, you probably won't pay $13.60 for this Red Devil Vacuum Grip Glass Holder that makes it easy to lift and place sheets of glass, steel, marble or anything smooth and heavy. But now you know how they do it.

It's Practically Impossible to burn fingers, bark knuckles if you use a Red Devil Burn-Off Knife with 1-o-n-g handle, and good stiff blade. The largest of 4 sizes costs but $1.75, so why do it the hard way? Good for scraping floors under radiators, too.

Why Didn't They Think Of It Before? Polyurathane pad attached to a good handle makes a Red Devil SP2 Screen Painter. You dip it in a shallow paint pan, wipe the screen with it, and presto! — job's done. The cost? Just 29¢.

Sign Of A Good Paint Store. Buy paint only where you see one of these red machines. It's a Red Devil Paint Conditioner and for it the dealer paid about $150 so he can shake your paint into factory-fresh suspension to save you stirring—or blend colors to your taste.

It's always best to buy where Red Devil Tools are sold, for wider choice, top quality, and correct "how-to" advice.

HOW-TO

for the home gardener

House plant protector: On cold winter nights, place a foil-covered shield on sill between plants and window.

To make a shield, just cut a cardboard to size and wrap it with ordinary kitchen aluminum foil.

Use of shield can make a difference of as much as 25 degrees between outside and inside temperature.

R. Condon,
Burlington, Vt.

Bird snack bar: Keep your wintering-over birds happy with this open feeder tray.

Nail a half-round molding to redwood or inexpensive mahogany board. Thread wire through eyelets screwed in at each of the corners.

Hang the tray in a tree, or simply suspend it from your clothesline. Choose spot where you can see it from window.

James Lober,
Plattsburg, N.Y.

Photographs: Stanley

Tool buffer: Here's a good way to get rid of rust and give your garden tools a midwinter shine. And it's fast.

Scrape any dried dirt and grime from metal parts first. Then, buff the metal with an aluminum oxide abrasive disc mounted on sander attachment. Use find grit.

To keep the metal bright and shiny, rub down lightly with oil-soaked cloth.

G. J. Baxter,
Salem, Oregon

Stake holder: Fasten two empty fruit-juice cans to the garage or toolshed wall for neat, easy storage.

Remove both ends from one can, leave the bottom in the other so the stakes will line up automatically.

Screw the cans to wall, or tack them up with nails.

If desired, the cans may be painted to match walls.

The diary of a plain dirt gardener

the birds, look after Scratch and Tussie and Mussie, the pussycats, and turn the furnace down during the day.

Feb. 22 This morning Maggie and I had breakfast with friends near Lansing, in Michigan. We've known each other these many years, from attending American Rose Society meetings.

Back home toward evening and Maggie found her amaryllis isn't open yet. But you should just see how that valentine crocus bowl is now all covered with purple.

Feb. 24 On this day, thermometer went up to 67. We had front and rear hall doors open, to let in the balmy breezes. Maggie's amaryllis at last began to unfold into gorgeous red blooms. David found the crocuses beginning to show above ground at the south of the house.

So David and I were filled with the spirit of spring and out we went in old clothes. He planted our live Christmas tree, which had been sitting in a sheltered spot, in a galvanized tub. I hunted up the lopping shears and began to prune the viburnum hedge.

Feb. 26 Tonight I was home early. Had needed time and energy to do all kinds of outdoor work. But it was raining. It had peppered down all day long, a gentle drizzle. Good for the lawn, though.

Cruel wind blowing from the north. All I could do was shiver out to carry food for the birds to eat.

Feb. 27 On my way home, stopped at a garden store, ordered lawn food. Right now is the ideal time in these parts to put on that plant food. Rains will wash it down. Grass will get a feeding as it awakens from its winter snooze, will thicken and spread.

Winter back. Temperature down below freezing. Cruel wind blowing from north. All I could do was shiver out to feed the birds and carry kitchen scraps.

Feb. 28 Rain today and nary a chance to finish up the month with a spell of work. Maggie and I drove off to another town to dinner with some friends and to a meeting afterward.

Safe driving

By Robert L. Rosekrans

Approximately 2,500 children between 5 and 14 will be killed by motor vehicles in the next 12 months.

In the next year, thousands of people will be walking along the nation's highways. Many of these will be children who will be playing as they walk. Each pedestrian you see should put you on guard.

When highway pedestrians, especially children, become habitual danger signals to you, you'll slow down. When you get within range of a child, you should be going slow enough to stop if he should suddenly dart in front of your car or attempt to cross the road. If no other traffic is near you, pull to the left as far as possible, giving clearance.

If you find it necessary to blow your horn, be sure to blow early enough so it will not frighten a pedestrian into doing something unexpected and dangerous. Under no circumstances should you blow your horn when you are too close to stop if a child should dart in front of you.

Many accidents happen after school busses stop. The children alight and, in crossing the road, step into the path of oncoming traffic. In some states, laws require cars from both directions to stop for a school bus, allowing children to cross the street. Law or not, a school bus should be a warning.

Bicycles should also present a warning. Even the best rider is likely to veer out of a straight path without notice. A turn of the handle bars can put him in the path of your car.

Safety is taught to most children, at home and in schools. Regardless of this education, children are apt to do the unexpected. It's better to exercise more caution than seems necessary than to have regrets after the unexpected happens.

"Martha, I don't know how you're going to take this—but I'm not going back home."

THE MAN NEXT DOOR®

"Marriage," complained the bride of six months at our office, "surely works some subtle changes in a man. When I had my first date with George, I gave him a slice of strawberry shortcake, and he stole a kiss. Yesterday, when he came home, I gave him a kiss, and he swiped a slice of strawberry shortcake."

Fred Randolph likes winter. "You can get warmed-up shoveling snow," he reasons, "but you can't cool off mowing grass."

The "Be My Valentine" on the heart-shaped box of candy Junior's gang bought their teacher seemed trite, so they've pasted over it: "Have a Heart." (Exams are coming up.)

Saw the Baylesses skating and asked Lee if he could still do a figure 8. "No," Peg answered for him, "but he's been down on all fours twice."

Young Eddie Nelson planned to send his buddy, out of school with the mumps, a Get Well card, but he came down with them himself, so he sent him a Thank You note instead.

Irked at teen-agers' lingo, Pat O'Leary decided if he couldn't beat 'em he'd join 'em. Handed his kids a shovel and said, "Dig that snow!"

Asked Ned Preston how he bowled last night. "Well," he reported, "if nobody had any more strikes than I did, we wouldn't need any Taft-Hartley Act."

The girl across the street has about decided to give up her career and get married. "A girl can get along alone," she says, "if she has a good head on her shoulders. But when, for no reason at all, she wants to enjoy a good cry, it must be kind of nice to have a couple of big, strong ones around the house to put it on."

"Case of mistaken identity," says young Mrs. Fenton, a first-time mother. "The bluebird of happiness is a stork."

My 5-year-old pal, Barry Emberlin, acted naughty one day and was challenged by his pretty Mom. He gave a very logical answer when she asked how he ever expected to get into heaven. "I'll just go in and out, in and out, in and out," he explained, "and slam the door every time. Pretty soon Saint Peter will shout, 'For gosh sakes, kid, either come in or stay out!'"

Sign at our suburb's outskirts: "Don't speed. The time you save may be spent in our jail."

Wonder where we'd be if Washington had refused to answer his country's call for fear it would incriminate him.

"If Heaven's a place of rest," grumbled Uncle Dodd Buckner, "my hired man's going to be all practiced up for it."

"There's a full sack of onions down here. We've been eating narcissus bulbs all winter!"

Always cheerful, the Widow Weems has a recipe for it: When you feel like giving up, give up something for somebody else.

Mrs. Hillis's mother made two New Year's resolutions: not to gossip; and to share things with others. "Heard a dandy rumor today," she bemoaned, "and now I don't know which resolution to keep."

February is short, but sweet when—your smallest fry says, "Who cares if the groundhog sees his shadow! What's better than these winter evenings at home?" . . . your son announces summarily, "I'm not going to get married until I find a girl like Mom" . . . your family fibs that they don't like the other programs, so you can watch the fight on TV . . . your teen-ager flops down on the sofa and, yielding to a little-girl nostalgia, plunks her head on your lap . . . your Valentine hugs the roses you bring her and whispers, "Thanks, honey. But I don't need THESE to tell me."

Burton Hillis

P. S. From Washington, ex-neighbor Bob Hannelly sends word that he's uncovered the key to our national economy.

Dear Burton: This month our task force is making a consumer study. A consumer is what's left of a person after taxes. The history of consuming is strewn with failures. Too many folks just don't measure up, some because of laziness, others because of faulty guidance.

When the consumer shirks, we get hard times. The government believes there is nothing worse than a half-hearted or tranquilized consumer. Naturally, the more you consume, the more things are sold. Then the makers and sellers can all consume more, too, leading to a shining little circle of consumption.

But aimless overconsuming is as dangerous to the system as underconsuming. People who overconsume have to go on diets. Then they buy less food and we get hard times again. In fact, some economists already are peevish about what they foresee as "the great diet depression of 1970." All the women will be svelte and trim, but all the men will be out of work. Nothing so retards a woman's morale as to have a slim figure but no man around with enough money to order the rich foods she enjoys refusing.

The point of our study is to find a way to consume enough extra to keep the wheels of progress turning, but not so much that everybody gets diet-conscious. It takes know-how.

We're considering creating federal scholarships to train consumers in college. After all, we train engineers, teachers, lawyers, and doctors, but we ignore the education of our consumers—the backbone of the system. Much can be taught young consumers. Most boys already know how to crack up the car so father has to buy a new one, but we must find less rigorous ways to accomplish our objectives. Girls could be taught to wear slacks instead of Bermuda shorts, thereby consuming more textiles. One school of economists, by the way, predicts a Bermuda shorts depression if something isn't done soon.

Many fine courses could lead to an M.C. (Master Consumer) degree. Perfect consumerism is our goal—the habit of buying everything in sight and throwing away most of it. There is, of course, the little matter of being able to afford it. That's the consumer's problem. After all, the government can only erect the guideposts and set you on the right road—with a pat on the back.

Sincerely,
Bob Hannelly
